Flockhart and Ford finally say I Do

Fish were really biting in this pond

CAUGHT An angler fishing in a British pond got a nasty surprise when his line came back with a thrashing piranha on the end.

Derek Plum caught the flesh-eating fish at a pond in Kent, about 113 kilometres southeast of London — and thousands of kilometres away from the piranha's usual home in the Amazon. The Environment Agency said Thursday the sharp-toothed predator was likely dumped by a pet owner who found it too large for its tank.

Uncle Sam's warning

Americans told to stay away from Toronto during summit

Protests expected at the G20 summit can quickly turn violent, so it's best to stay away from them — in fact, avoid the Toronto downtown core altogether, the U.S. warned its citizens Thursday.

The U.S. State Department issued a travel alert for Americans who live in Toronto or plan to visit the city before or during the June 26-27 summit of world leaders.

G20 Summit

"Previous G20 summits have drawn large numbers of protesters and activists, and a number of groups have announced plans to demonstrate throughout downtown Toronto," the advisory says.

"Even demonstrations that are meant to be peaceful can become violent and unpredictable. You should avoid them if at all possible."

Because of security concerns and significant travel disruptions in and around the security perimeter, the state department is suggesting people avoid the area completely.

"U.S. citizens should avoid travelling in or through downtown Toronto during the summit, if possible."

Small businesses near the summit site will already be taking a hit, said Toronto New Democrat MP Olivia Chow, and this advisory won't help matters.

"This is the height of the tourism season and losing these Americans is going to be a big problem," she said.

"The Conservative government said they would not compensate (for) any property damages.

"They are basically telling the businesses in Toronto to go jump in that fake lake."

The streets immediately surrounding the summit meetings will be restricted, but outside that Toronto is going to continue being the vibrant city it always is, said Andrew Weir of Tourism Toronto.

He's not really your grandson: Cops

Halton police are warning senior citizens to beware of fraudulent phone calls by people posing as their grandson. Investigators are looking into three incidents that have been targeting seniors in the Oakville region in the last two weeks. The victims all smelled a scam and contacted police, but investigators say other "grandson scam" targets may not have been so lucky and warn residents to be on the alert for suspicious calls from long-lost "relatives."

Protesters unveil headquarters

G20 Summit

G20 protesters will have comfy couches, a kitchen, mellow music and even a barbecue after a long day of hoisting signs and pounding pavements.

After months of summit officials publicizing Toronto's plans, demonstrators unveiled some of their own Thursday.

Community activists showed off a dark basement on Queen Street West in Toronto, which will be a headquarters-of-sorts for weary protesters looking for some reprieve.

"It is costing us a lot of money," said Syed Hussan of The Toronto Community Mobilization Network.

"We've been selling T-shirts, we've been getting donations and grants."

"This is a community endeavour, there has not been $1.3 billion spent on it. There is no lake."
Syed Hussan, Toronto Community Mobilization Network

Dubbed a "convergence space," the room is filled with well-worn couches and a coffee table.

In the corner, a colourful sign reads, "The People's Kitchen." It is here where meals will be prepared for the people filing in and out.

"This is a community endeavour, there has not been $1.3 billion spent on it. There is no lake ... just saying," Hussan said, shrugging as he poked fun at the cost of the G20 and the fake lake scene constructed at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

The space, which holds about 300 people, will also act as a welcome spot for those coming into the city.

G20 Oily protest

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A demonstrator wearing a giant papier mâché head of Prime Minister Stephen Harper leads protesters covered in cocoa and vegetable oil — made to resemble a human oil slick — through the financial district Thursday during a G8 protest organized by Oxfam Canada as part of a Global day of Action against the G8 and G20 summits. The action is designed to comment on the spending for the summits while highlighting the freezing of foreign aid.

News in brief

BLOCKADES A First Nations rights group is still planning highway blockades around Toronto despite an apparent warning from Canada's spy agency and heavy security around the G20 meeting of world leaders. The blockades are planned for either Highway 400 or Highway 403 next Thursday to tell the world that, "everything is not OK in Canada for native people," said Red Power United spokesman Harrison Friesen. Plans have been in the works for the actions since April. An Aboriginal Peoples Television Network report that CSIS warned the group that blockades around Toronto could be met with resistance by foreign security services has only increased support, Friesen said. Police association calls for union leader's resignation

SECURITY The Toronto Police Association is calling for a labour leader's resignation over remarks about G20 summit security.

Ontario Federation of Labour president Sid Ryan was quoted in a Toronto newspaper as saying Toronto police might try to incite violence during anti-G20 protests to justify their share of the $1.3-billion security budget.

Mike McCormack

Police union head Mike McCormack calls the reported comments "idiotic, irresponsible and inflammatory" and says Ryan should resign for "defaming the police."

Ryan told The Canadian Press Thursday that he said he hoped summit security forces would not use agent provocateurs among the demonstrators.

Ryan noted that Quebec provincial police admitted three of their officers disguised themselves as demonstrators during a protest at the North American leaders summit in Montebello, Que., in 2007.

The Canadian Labour Congress and the Ontario Federation of Labour are organizing a rally and march on June 26, which they're billing as the largest public demonstration of the G20.

"I'm perfectly within my rights to raise that spectre" of police agents infiltrating the protests, Ryan said.

"I never suggested any particular police force would be engaged in it," Ryan said. "I just said I hoped these tactics are not used to try to justify the massive expenditure of taxpayers' dollars."

McCormack is trying to "grab some headlines when in fact he's way off base," Ryan added.

The labour groups say they want to put a spotlight on the plight of working people who are being forgotten in the economic recovery.

12 youth go to bat across the pond

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Toronto

In a city with major professional hockey, baseball, basketball, football, and even soccer teams, the only marquee sport unaccounted for takes place between the wickets.

Cricket may never have taken off in North America, but in most of the world it's still the primary bat n' ball sport for players who just don't understand what all this baseball fuss is about. Fortunately, Toronto is gradually welcoming this storied sport into the fold, with the annual Celebration Of Cricket CIMA Mayor's Trophy, in which prominent figures in the local community play the game to raise money for the Cricket Across The Pond (C.A.P.) program that sends local high school students to England.

C.A.P. offers an extraordinary opportunity for Toronto youths with a passion for the game. Each year, 12 players from the city are selected for the CIMA Toronto Mayor's Team, sending them on a two-week training camp and pitting them against some of the finest young teams in England.

CIMA Mayor's Team

- Tristan Ali
- Nikhail Batiste
- Nikhil Dutta
- Muhammad Hassan
- Shashwat Koirala
- Dale Lucas
- Pratik Marathe
- Parth Raval
- Tahseen Shah
- Mahideep Singh Sidhu
- Vikram Singh
- Saad Bin Zafar

One of the lucky young players selected for this year's team is 17-year-old Muhammad Hassan, who is thrilled about the opportunity.

DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Muhammad Hassan, 17, a North Albion Collegiate cricket player, has been chosen to the Mayor's Team to play in England.

"It's quite exciting because going to London and seeing Lord's Cricket Ground is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," Hassan told Metro.

Hassan is the star of his high school cricket team and tried out for this program twice in the past before making the cut in his senior year. He's keen to see the sport he loves expand in this country.

"Cricket is definitely at a developing stage in Canada," said Hussan. "But looking back to only five or six years ago, there's been a huge growth. Cricket has a bright future and certainly that will continue."

G(irls) 20 rep aims to be 'voice of hope'

G20 Summit

Girls from all the G20 countries are gathering in Toronto this week for the first G(irls)20 Summit to show what the world would be like if they were in charge.

The summit is part of an international campaign called 3.3 Billion Ways, which is led by the Belinda Stronach Foundation. Metro Canada asked participants about how they think the world's greatest challenges can best be solved.

Here's Nomathemba Sibanyoni, 19, of South Africa.

Q What do you believe are the biggest challenges for women and girls in your country?

A Teenage pregnancy under poverty conditions. Leaders can encourage and assure the enhancement, availability and implementation of educational workshops and campaigns especially targeting disadvantaged areas like rural areas and farms.

Q What do you do to help the lives of girls and women in your community, your country?

A I engage myself in various social empowerment projects, including writing and presenting poems and speeches in issues related to women, I become their voices of hope by also promoting education.

Q How do you think we can improve maternal health worldwide?

A I believe that certain diseases are preventable, provided people know the necessary precautions that have to be taken. In a global sense, maternal health can be prevented and cured by raising health awareness campaigns, that mainly focus on teaching people especially women about all issues related to it.

Q How can we eradicate extreme poverty and hunger worldwide?

A Agriculture and proper land management is the best possible solution that can be implemented and be moderated for communities who are attacked by extreme poverty and hunger.

Economic growth will reduce world poverty: Australia's rep

Jane Harris, 19, of Australia shares her thoughts on making the world a better place.

Q What do you believe are the biggest challenges for women and girls in your country?

A One in three Australian women will be a victim of physical violence in her lifetime. To deal with this problem, leaders should measure, protect, prevent and support. ... Leaders can implement laws to protect victims and the Australian government has agreed to work with the family law sector to improve handling of domestic violence cases.

Q What do you do to help the lives of girls and women in your community, your country?

A I have been a Girl Guide for the last 15 years. I have recently submitted a project plan to align Girl Guides Australia with the Fair Trade movement.

Jane Harris

Q How do you think we can improve maternal health worldwide?

A The primary approach for improving maternal health worldwide has to be promotion of effective partnerships to enable a targeted and efficient approach to aid. The UN has split improvement of maternal health into two targets: Reduce maternal mortality and achieve universal access to reproductive health. Currently, in the World Health Organization regions of Africa and South-East Asia less than half of births are attended by a skilled professional ... Effective partnerships will facilitate training to enable women worldwide to receive skilled care.

Q How can we eradicate extreme poverty and hunger worldwide?

A Economic growth is the most effective way to reduce world poverty. The latest UN update on the World Economic Situation and Prospects records that overall in 2010 there has been global growth.

Though this growth is weak, uneven across countries and does not eliminate the recessionary output gap caused by the economic downturn, the focus in terms of eradicating poverty should now be turned to reversing the damage done by the financial crisis. METRO WORLD NEWS

'Instilling values in both men and women is essential'

Here's 19-year-old María Julieta Leiva of Argentina.

Q What do you believe are the biggest challenges for women and girls in your country?

A I believe overcoming domestic violence against women is one of Argentina's major challenges. Women in my country are commonly affected by spousal abuse, and gender discrimination is, in my opinion, the root cause of this type of violence. In order to reduce this epidemic, educating and instilling values in both men and women is essential.

Q What do you do to help the lives of girls and women in your community, your country?

A I work with kids, both girls and boys, at schools and other establishments in my community. I have been appointed coordinator of solidarity activities in a foundation ... which organizes campaigns to gather books, school supplies, toys and basically any other thing that rural schools in Mendoza need to provide children a proper education.

Maria Julieta Leiva

Q How do you think we can improve maternal health worldwide?

A The geographical and economical availability of health-care institutions which offer women the proper prenatal, delivery and postnatal medical care is essential to improving maternal health. We need to allow pregnant women and new mothers access to more information and health education programs.

Q How can we eradicate extreme poverty and hunger worldwide?

A This is, in my opinion, the most ambitious Millennium Development Goal set by the UN, yet the most vital. I believe that promoting agriculture is a critical component to successfully meet the MDGs, especially to eradicate extreme poverty and hunger. ... About 70 per cent of the MDGs' target group live in rural areas, particularly in Asia and Africa, according to The World Bank. Those people rely on agriculture to meet their daily needs.

Ford feels 'set up' with tape

Councillor says 'feared' for family in talk with man seeking drugs

Trying to explain a taped phone conversation between himself and an HIV-positive man, Councillor Rob Ford says he feels "set up" by someone who doesn't want him to be mayor.

Ford

"I said what I needed to say to get this person off the phone without provoking him," Ford told reporters at a news conference yesterday. "I feared for my family."

In the June 4 recording, Dieter Doneit-Henderson, who also has the chronic pain condition fibromyalgia, asks Ford to get him the powerful painkiller OxyContin on the street. Ford seems to entertain the request.

"Why don't you go on the street and score it?" Mr. Ford can be heard saying on the tape. "Leave this with me … I have no idea. I don't know any drug dealers at all … I'll bet my life I won't be able to help you out."

Doneit-Henderson gave the Toronto Star access to the recording June 5. "He threw me for a real loop," Ford said at the time. "I felt bad for the guy. Of course I'm not going to go out and buy drugs for the guy." The Star made a judgment not to publish. On Thursday, after the Toronto Sun published excerpts of the call, Ford said the interactions with Doneit-Henderson had made him scared for his family, so he formally complained to police at 22 Division on Tuesday.

In an interview Wednesday night, Doneit-Henderson called the allegations against him absurd.

Couple guilty of drugging, sex assault

COURT A Mississauga couple has been convicted of drugging another couple and sexually assaulting the woman during a booze-fuelled night that left the victims without memories of the sex acts they say were forced upon them.

Marcia Vant, 30, and her husband, David Vant, 39, had pleaded not guilty to sexual assault and administering a "stupefying thing" to a couple they met in a bar in February 2009. They are to be sentenced in Brampton court on July 14.

The identities of the victims were protected in the judge-alone trial before Justice Silja Seppi.

The centrepiece of the Crown's case was a cellphone video the male victim admitted shooting at the Vants' apartment during a 24-period. Neither he nor his girlfriend had any memory of it because they were drugged, the Crown said during the trial.

Access to information not a constitutional right: Supreme Court

Bright, fancy Eaton Centre

$120M upgrades include new sculpture, better food court

A better food court featuring real china plates.

A dramatic new lighting sculpture suspended from the iconic glass ceiling.

And a lighter, brighter, more airy feel throughout the mall.

These are the main elements of a $120-million facelift for the 33-year-old Toronto Eaton Centre, which attracts 52 million visitors a year.

"When we first opened the doors, it set a new standard for retail," Wayne Barwise, vice-president of development for owner Cadillac Fairview Corp. Ltd., said in Toronto on Thursday. "Now, we're about to do this again."

Nearly half the budget will be spent refreshing the glass-domed upper floor, referred to as the Galleria, after the Italian mall that inspired the original architect. In the Galleria, a stunning new light sculpture by a British design firm will hang from the glass dome, starting above the fountain and stretching 30 metres in either direction.

The rest of the budget will be spent upgrading the two food court areas, Barwise said.

The north food court, near Dundas Street, will become a showcase both for local restaurateurs, and national chains, Barwise said. The food at all the restaurants will be served on real china, instead of plastic, paper and Styrofoam.

Housing corp. accepts blame in man's death

TCHC The head of the Toronto Community Housing Corp. has admitted the agency made mistakes and is "fully accountable" in the case of an 82-year-old tenant who was evicted and later died in a shelter.

Speaking to the Toronto Star ahead of Friday's release of former chief justice Patrick LeSage's report probing the case of tenant Al Gosling, Keiko Nakamura said the tragedy resulted from a "failure" by the housing agency to properly implement its systems.

She promised to act swiftly on recommendations in the report, adding that the housing agency will use more face-to-face contact with its residents.

Gosling, a pensioner on a fixed income, was evicted from his subsidized unit in June 2009 after he failed to provide documents that showed he needed a rent subsidy. A series of letters was sent to Gosling by the housing agency before the eviction, but he ignored them.

'Don't try to change everything'

Past Lotto Max winner offers tips ahead of Friday's big draw

A Lotto Max jackpot winner has some advice for any potential winners of Friday night's record $95 million in lottery prize money.

Don't go on a wild spending spree or change your life too much — as hard as that might be.

Donald MacDonald, who's retired from the treasury department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is enjoying the $10-million jackpot he won in March.

His suggestion for anyone with champagne wishes and caviar dreams should they strike it rich Friday?

Just cool it.

"Try not to change your way of life. Just live the same life, have the same friends, do the same things, don't try to change everything," he said Thursday.

"If you change everything you're going to miss a lot along the way."

The 78-year-old Oakville resident — who's single — has pretty much taken that advice.

He has renovated his bathrooms and is redoing the kitchen.

He also plans to go to Europe in August, a trip he has been putting off for at least a decade.

He has been contacted by distant relatives but they only phoned to congratulate him, he said.

"I'm very, very happy by the lack of people who've tried to hit me up for a loan." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Say hello to the new ATM

BANKING Bank machines are starting to get personal with their customers.

The next generation of ATMs have live tellers streamed via video on their screens and are starting to be used by financial institutions as they extend their hours and try to save costs.

"All you have to do is touch the screen with your finger and the teller pops up," said Dave Schurman of Hamilton's FirstOntario Credit Union, which has launched its first personal assisted teller.

FOCU

- FirstOntario Credit Union has 17 branches in 11 communities in southern Ontario, including St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and Welland.

It's the best of both worlds, combining efficiency without losing sight of the customer experience, Schurman said Thursday.

"We could go 24/7, if we wanted to at locations," he said. "We could open on Sunday."

FirstOntario has trained about eight tellers to do the job and has extended its Saturday hours and plans to extend weekday evening hours.

"The person at the other end is smiling," Schurman said of the video teller, adding the customer and teller can make "little jokes back and forth with each other."

Another goal of the video teller is to ask questions about services and products customers may need, he said, adding this kind of teller could also be useful during RRSP season.

Video tellers aren't going to eliminate jobs, Schurman said, but it will mean branches with fewer live tellers.

Feds failed to avert Air India blast: Report

The bomb blast that shattered the lives of 329 men, women and children aboard Air India Flight 182 could have been prevented but for a "cascading series of errors" by police, intelligence officers and air safety regulators.

That's the conclusion of retired Supreme Court justice John Major, who spent nearly four years leading a public inquiry into the 1985 terrorist attack that killed a planeload of Canadian and Indian citizens over the Irish Sea.

His damning report says the RCMP, Canadian Security Intelligence Service and Transport Canada failed to heed warning signs the airline was likely to come under attack.

John Major

And it notes there are still holes in the country's security systems that need plugging.

His No. 1 recommendation is beefed-up powers for the national security adviser to set security policies and priorities, and oversee communication between agencies.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the government will respond to recommendations of an apology and compensation for victims' families, but he was non-committal on a sheaf of other suggestions aimed at ensuring a similar tragedy never occurs again. THE CANADIAN PRESS

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Members of Air India Victims' Families Association Lata Pata, left, and Bal Gupta speak to the media Thursday in the foyer of the House of Commons in Ottawa. Former Supreme Court justice John Major concluded the attack that killed 329 people in 1985 could have been prevented if not for a "cascading series of errors" by authorities.

Inquiry brings victims' relative relief

AIR INDIA After 25 years of grieving, Lata Pada was nervous as she waited for the final report from a public inquiry into the Air India bombing.

Pada lost her husband and two daughters when Flight 182 was downed by a bomb on June 23, 1985, and like many victims' family members she spent decades lobbying successive governments for the inquiry.

"It feels almost surreal," she said from Ottawa, where she listened to inquiry commissioner John Major summarize his findings. "When you wait and fight for 25 years it feels very strange to be in a place where this is actually happening."

"I see the (prospective) apology as a public acknowledgment ... of what went wrong."
Lata Pada

All 329 passengers and crew died when Flight 182 crashed into the ocean off the coast of Ireland. Two baggage handlers also died in an explosion an hour earlier in Narita, Japan, as they loaded suitcases onto another Air India jet.

Pada, of Mississauga, said she was grateful for Major's call for an apology to the victims' families for what he deemed a series of mistakes by various agencies both before the bombing and after.

"I see the apology as a public acknowledgment, as the government's acknowledgment, of what went wrong and how there is a collective responsibility on the part of the government to address the fact that we, the family members, and the victims, were ignored for all these years and the system had failed us," she said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highlights of report on Air India

CONCLUSIONS Key recommendations in the Air India report released Thursday by former Supreme Court justice John Major:

- Appoint an independent body to consider compensation payments for families of the victims.
- Give the national security adviser the power to impose co-operation on various government agencies, including CSIS and the RCMP.
- Change laws to make terrorism prosecutions easier.
- Tighten airport security systems, especially those that involve air cargo and access to airport facilities.
- Create a national security witness protection program.
- Consider removing the RCMP from the business of contracting out police services to the provinces.
- Establish an institute for the study of terrorism and name it the Kanishka Centre after the name of the plane that was destroyed in the bombing.

Jaffer thumbed his nose at us: MPs

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rahim Jaffer takes his seat Thursday as the government operations committee meets in Ottawa.

Rahim Jaffer's attempt to convince a Commons committee his business dealings were above board has angered MPs of all stripes.

"As far as I'm concerned, he's a liar," said Bloc Québécois MP Michel Guimond.

"I'm sure — I don't think — I'm sure he was illegally lobbying."

Members of the government operations committee said Thursday they believe Jaffer has been thumbing his nose at their work.

MPs spent their final morning before the summer break pressing the ex-MP on whether he illegally lobbied Conservative officials to back a series of renewable energy ventures.

The Speaker of the House will rule in the fall if Jaffer breached the privileges of Parliament.

Jaffer's wife, Helena Guergis, was ousted from the Tory caucus in April.

Jaffer vented his frustration: "The way my wife has been treated … doesn't represent anything that I've ever seen."

Nurses vote for lump-sum payment — but no pay raise

Manitoba's nurses have accepted a contract that gives them a lump-sum payment but no actual increase in the first two years of the three-and-a-half- year deal. The Manitoba Nurses Union says 89 per cent of those who voted were in favour of the package. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aussies mine laughs at Que. town's expense

A Canadian mining town is getting its moment of international television fame — and it's not entirely flattering.

A popular reality show on Australian television pokes fun at Asbestos, Que., one of the country's last asbestos-mining communities. It's a TV contest where advertising execs face a challenge: Create a marketing campaign that would make a tourist actually want to visit the place.

Two videos — which are clearly cheeky spoofs — play on the town name. One video suggests Asbestos should adopt the slogan "Bad name, great destination."

The Quebec government is intent on breathing new life into the asbestos industry. The province is close to backing $58 million loan to reopen a mine in Asbestos, which could keep it operating for the next 25 years.

The Jeffrey mine is one of two Canadian operations that still exploit the mineral — the other is about 90 kilometres away in Thetford Mines.

"For the economic development of our region, it's a major development project," said Asbestos Mayor Hugues Grimard.

Grimard predicts reviving the mine would create more than 400 direct and 1,000 indirect jobs in the area. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Health hazard?

- World scientists and physicians want Quebec to stop extracting and exporting asbestos, blamed for serious health problems including cancer.
- But supporters of Quebec asbestos, known as chrysotile, contend it's safe when handled properly.

Michael Ignatieff walks with wife Zsuzsanna Zsohar to a news conference in Ottawa Thursday.

Coalition? We are, says Iggy

POLITICS There's already a coalition party to vote for in the next election — the federal Liberal party, says leader Michael Ignatieff.

"We're the party at the centre of Canadian political life — the progressive, responsible, reforming centre," Ignatieff said Thursday. "We're the coalition at the centre of Canadian life."

"We're the party at the centre."
Michael Ignatieff

Ignatieff has been dogged by suggestions — from ex-prime minister Jean Chrétien, among others — that Liberals should merge with the New Democrats and offer a coalition of the left to voters.

Ignatieff made clear he's not about to tell Chrétien to stop the coalition talk.

He "won three majority governments. You don't go around telling anybody of that distinction to cease and desist," Ignatieff said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

MPs rush to block Homolka pardon

CRIME MPs have speedily passed a bill that would prevent schoolgirl killer Karla Homolka from seeking a pardon.

The four federal parties quickly agreed to pass the pardon reform just hours before the Commons was expected to rise for its summer break.

Under the legislation, anyone convicted of a serious personal injury crime would have to wait 10 years after release from prison before applying for a pardon.

Currently, they have to wait three to five years.

The bill must still clear the Senate.

Homolka left prison in 2005, after serving 12 years for her role in the sex slayings of two schoolgirls in the early 1990s.

Without the proposed reforms, she would have been eligible to apply for a pardon in about two weeks. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Monkeying around

Report cites serious flaws in care at Calgary Zoo

The tally of animal deaths at the Calgary Zoo in recent years seemed unusually high.

A hippo died after a long, painful transfer from another zoo. More than 40 stingrays perished after someone messed up oxygen levels in their tank. A large spiral-horned wild goat got caught in a toy rope and strangled.

Many wondered whether the zoo had just hit a patch of bad luck, something that could happen at any facility trying to care for so many animals.

But a report released Thursday by the groups that accredit zoos across North America suggested the string of deaths wasn't an unfortunate fluke.

It said human error was behind more of the deaths than at other zoos and urged immediate steps be taken to make sure the creatures are safe.

"This is not just a series of unfortunate events ... there is a pattern related to lack of preparedness and expertise to accept new animals, increased work expectations, workload ... and a lack of rapid and appropriate aggressive response to problems," said the report.

Zoo president Clement Lanthier disputed some of the report's statistics, but said the facility is implementing a 36-point plan to address the many problems listed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Group says Canada 'still on the first mile' in wait times

A group that tracks how long it takes to get medical care in Canada says there's a "black hole" of data on wait times for procedures outside of five identified priority areas.

The Wait Time Alliance also reported Thursday on pediatric surgeries for the first time, saying that although 73 per cent of children received their surgeries within an established benchmark time, more than 17,000 kids waited longer for their surgery last year than medical experts recommend.

It has been six years since Canada's first ministers committed to reduce wait times in the five priority areas — diagnostic imaging, hip and knee replacements, cancer care, sight restoration and cardiac surgery — and the alliance noted there has been "slow improvement."

"Far too many Canadians still experience long waits for needed medical care, and are kept in the dark about the wait."
Dr. Lorne Bellan, co-chair, Wait Time Alliance

"But the big picture is that far too many Canadians still experience long waits for needed medical care, and are kept in the dark about the wait they can expect to face," said Dr. Lorne Bellan, co-chair of the Wait Time Alliance.

"Doctors who work on the front lines know that's just not enough progress. In the wait times marathon, we're still on the first mile."

One of the so-called hot spots is the area of knee replacement, where more than one in three patients wait longer than is considered medically acceptable. THE CANADIAN PRESS

News in brief

LAWSUIT The Halifax fire department's two top officials have filed a defamation lawsuit against seven people, including two firefighters, over comments that were made anonymously on a local weekly newspaper's website. Fire Chief Bill Mosher and Deputy Chief Stephen Thurber say in court documents filed Thursday that the comments made on the website of The Coast are libellous and they are seeking unspecified damages. The comments came after a series of articles about the fire department, including an article about black firefighters filing a human rights complaint against the department. There are no allegations of libel against the newspaper itself. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stay beyond pullout to train: Ex-general

Canadian troops should stay to train the fledgling Afghan army beyond the official pullout next year, says an outspoken former general.

And retired major-general Lewis MacKenzie told a House of Commons committee that rumblings from the Liberals make him hopeful a training assignment in Kabul — where Canadian troops give classroom instruction to Afghan soldiers — will come about.

"I'm heartened by the fact there seems to be some agreement that that would be an ideal role for us," said MacKenzie, who commanded UN forces in Sarajevo during the Balkans war.

The Canadian army is exhausted and the combat mission in Kandahar must come to an end, he said, but that should not mean a halt to Canada's military involvement.

MacKenzie told MPs a future deployment should not involve soldiers embedded with Afghan troops in the field, in units known as Operational Mentoring and Liaison Teams.

"I've read Canadian public opinion and I guess I've become a realist, but I really want us to leave something behind," MacKenzie said.

"The OMLTs may be a bridge too far. I've said over and over, people in the U.S. ... don't know we're in Afghanistan, but when that last piper plays and the ramp comes up on the C-17 (transport plane) and we leave — everybody will know we've left. So this would temper that."

Players tries to revive football

WATERLOO Players from the University of Waterloo football team are making a last-ditch attempt to save their program.

The Warriors were suspended for one year earlier this week after nine of the team's 62 players committed doping infractions.

Several dozen players attended a news conference Thursday in a campus gym to say it was unfair for clean players to be punished as well.

They want school officials to reverse the decision to ban the team for the 2010 season. The players hope the suspension will be reduced to probation, with the team reinstated for next season.

Players will offer to submit for drug testing, and to speaking of the risks of performance-enhancing substances at local schools.

They're hoping the school makes a decision by Friday at 1 p.m. EST, as players will be free to transfer to other programs after that deadline.

News in brief

H1N1 Scientists from Hong Kong are calling for ramped-up surveillance of pig populations after discovering a new swine flu virus that is a hybrid of the pandemic H1N1 virus and viruses previously found in pigs. The discovery of the virus, found early this year in a pig taken to slaughter in Hong Kong, suggests what experts have feared: the H1N1 virus may reassort easily with other viruses in pigs. That's a process that could generate new flu viruses that could sicken humans, they warned.

First Nations exempt

Ottawa blames Ontario for HST bungle

The federal government agreed Thursday to Ontario's request to give First Nations a point of sale exemption on the harmonized sales tax, but blamed the province for mishandling the issue.

Ontario First Nations have been exempt from the provincial sales tax for decades, and were threatening road closures during next week's G8/G20 summits if they didn't get an HST exemption.

Ontario's Liberal government has maintained it always wanted First Nations to have the right not to pay the HST at point of sale, and said it was Ottawa's fault the exemption hadn't been allowed.

"The decision to adopt the HST framework is for provinces to make."
Finance Minister Jim Flaherty

However, in a letter obtained by The Canadian Press, dated June 17, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty says Ontario didn't even bother to ask for the HST exemption for First Nations on time, but Ottawa has decided to allow it.

"The decision to adopt the HST framework is for provinces to make," Flaherty wrote to Ontario Finance Minister Dwight Duncan.

"Last year I had communicated to you a firm deadline of June 30, 2009, for Ontario to inform the Government of Canada of its list of desired point of sale rebates. Although Ontario did not respect this deadline ... the Government of Canada has worked diligently to accommodate your decision and the needs of Ontario First Nations."

News in brief

MAYFLIES Business owners along the Lake Erie shores in Ohio say the annual invasion of mayflies is a little worse than in recent years. The pesky but harmless bugs started rising out of the lake this week and are blanketing street lamps, store windows and just about anything they can cling to near shorelines in the Toledo area. Mayflies are a sign of a healthier Lake Erie even though they're an annoyance because they stick to clothes and sometimes land in hair.

Pirates sentenced to five years

Five Somali men were sentenced to prison in the Netherlands Thursday for attacking a Dutch-Antilles-flagged cargo ship with automatic weapons and a rocket-propelled grenade in the first piracy case to come to trial in Europe in modern times. The five were convicted of assaulting the Samanyulo in the Gulf of Aden in 2009 — an attack that was thwarted by helicopter-borne Danish marines. Each of the attackers was sentenced to five years in prison.

Palin puts foot in mouth, again

Remarks on oil spill cleanup roundly ridiculed

She's blamed environmentalists for helping cause the catastrophe in the Gulf of Mexico, accused U.S. President Barack Obama of using the oil spill to raise energy prices and urged the White House to contact the Dutch because "they are known for dikes."

Sarah Palin — the guiding light of the foundering Tea Party movement whose energy mantra is "drill, baby, drill" — is back in the U.S. spotlight in the midst of the worst environmental disaster in American history. And Democrats are likely grateful for it.

Even Bill O'Reilly of Fox News, the cable news giant that gave the self-styled hockey mom her own show and frequently uses her as a commentator, seemed taken aback earlier this week when he interviewed the rambling Palin following Obama's address to the nation about the spill.

He pressed the former Alaska governor, considered well-versed in energy issues, to explain what she'd do to plug the gusher several kilometres beneath the surface of the Gulf of Mexico that's defied all human efforts to stop it for the past two months.

"The Dutch," said Palin, who insisted the Obama administration was refusing help from foreign governments.

"They are known, and the Norwegian. They are known for ... for dikes and for cleaning up water and for dealing with spills."

In fact, it was noted following her interview, many foreign nations are contributing to the efforts to combat the gusher, including the Norwegians and the Dutch — although in the early days of the spill, when oil giant BP was wildly underestimating the extent of the spill, their offer to help was declined.

"There are foreign vessels out there right now," Ken Wells, president of the Offshore Marine Services Association, said recently. Reports to the contrary, Wells added, are "misleading and misinformed."

BP CEO Tony Hayward testifies Thursday before the U.S. Congressional Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee during a hearing in Washington.

BP boss grilled at hearing

WASHINGTON Channelling America's anger, lawmakers pilloried the boss of the company that caused the Gulf calamity Thursday in a withering day of judgment. Unflinching, BP chief executive Tony Hayward said he was out of the loop on decisions at the well and coolly asserted, "I'm not stonewalling."

That infuriated members of Congress even more, Democrats and Republicans alike.

Yet he disclaimed knowledge of any of the myriad problems on and under the Deepwater Horizon rig before the deadly explosion, telling a congressional hearing he had only heard about the well earlier in April, the month of the accident, when the BP drilling team told him it had found oil.

"With respect, sir, we drill hundreds of wells a year around the world," Hayward told Republican Rep. Michael Burgess of Texas.

"Yes, I know," Burgess shot back. "That's what scaring me right now."

Phil Gingrey, R-Ga., told the CEO: "I think you're copping out. You're the captain of the ship."

The verbal onslaught had been anticipated for days and unfolded at a nearly relentless pace.

But in a jarring departure that caught fellow Republicans by surprise, Rep. Joe Barton, top GOP member of the panel, used his opening statement to apologize — twice — for the pressure put on the company by U.S. President Barack Obama to contribute to a compensation fund for people in the afflicted Gulf of Mexico states.

Barton said the U.S. has "a due process system" to assess such damages, and he decried the $20-billion fund BP agreed to Wednesday at the White House as a "shakedown."

Man accused in U.S.-Kosovo terror plot

KOSOVO A man arrested Thursday in Kosovo is accused of being part of a terrorism plot that originated in the southern United States among people who planned attacks both at a U.S. military installation and abroad. The U.S. Attorney's Office in Raleigh, North Carolina, said Thursday that Bajram Asllani, 29, of Mitrovica, Kosovo, is accused of plotting with the men in North Carolina to engage in terrorism in Kosovo. Authorities say he asked the U.S. men for money so he could buy land in Kosovo and build a base there to store weapons and ammunition for terrorism. Asllani also is accused of providing propaganda videos for one of the men in the U.S. to translate and use to recruit others for terrorism. Federal and state authorities gave few details of his arrest, except to say that he was taken into custody without incident by the Kosovo Police Anti-Terrorism Unit.

Humanitarian crisis unfolding

400,000 displaced in Central Asia; refugees tell stories of children being raped

Some 400,000 people have been displaced by ethnic violence in southern Kyrgyzstan, the United Nations announced Thursday, dramatically increasing the official estimate of a crisis that has left throngs of desperate, fearful refugees without enough food and water in grim camps along the Uzbek border.

ALEXANDER ZEMLIANICHENKO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Children are seen through a bus window Thursday as they leave the southern Kyrgyz city of Osh.

Ethnic Uzbeks interviewed by Associated Press journalists in the main regional city of Osh said ethnic Kyrgyz men had sexually assaulted and beaten more than 10 Uzbek women and girls, including some pregnant women, and children as young as 12, on a single street during the rampages that erupted last week.

Resident Matlyuba Akramova showed journalists a 16-year-old relative who appeared to be in a state of shock, and said she had been hiding in the attic as Kyrgyz mobs beat her father in their home in the Cheryomushki neighbourhood. At some point, Akramova said, the girl came downstairs to bandage her father's head and another group of attackers noticed her and sexually assaulted her in front of her father.

Members of the Kyrgyz community have denied accusations of brutality and have accused Uzbek of raping Kyrgyz women.

Eyewitnesses and experts say many Kyrgyz were killed in the unrest between the majority Kyrgyz population and minority ethnic Uzbeks. But the majority of victims appear to have been predominantly Uzbeks, traditional farmers and traders who speak a distinct but separate Turkic language and have traditionally been more prosperous than the Kyrgyz, who come from a nomadic tradition.

Pope discusses abuse scandal

VATICAN The Pope met Thursday with the head of the Legionaries of Christ pending an expected papal announcement about who will take charge of the conservative order scarred by revelations that its founder sexually abused seminarians and fathered at least one child. The Legionaries said that, during the private audience, its director general, the Rev. Alvaro Corcuera Martinez del Rio, thanked Pope Benedict XVI for his "fatherly care" and assured him of the "unconditional loyalty" of the Legionaries and its lay movement Regnum Christi.

The Vatican announced May 1 that the Pope had decided to appoint a delegate to take charge of the order after an eight-month investigation showed the Legionaries needed to be profoundly re-evaluated and purified to survive, given the enormous influence the late founder had on it.

The Holy See said the founder, the Rev. Marciel Maciel, had committed grave and "objectively immoral actions."

South Korea, U.S. express solidarity against North

SEOUL South Korea and the United States expressed solidarity Thursday over the deadly sinking of a South Korean warship they blame on North Korea, with a senior American diplomat saying the allies face Pyongyang from a position of "profound strength."

Tension is high on the Korean peninsula with North Korea warning any moves to punish it at the United Nations would lead to armed conflict and possibly nuclear war.

South Korea and the U.S. have urged Pyongyang to avoid such provocations and vowed to hold the regime accountable for the March sinking of the warship Cheonan that killed 46 South Korean sailors. North Korea vehemently denies any role.

"We face North Korean provocation from a position of profound strength," U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs Kurt Campbell told reporters Thursday after meeting with officials in Seoul. The two Koreas remain technically in a state of war because the 1950-53 Korean War ended with an armistice, not a peace treaty. The truce was signed by North Korea, China and the American-led UN Command but not South Korea. The U.S. retains about 28,500 troops in South Korea to deter possible aggression. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli easing of blockade 'a good start'

An Israeli decision Thursday to ease its blockade of Gaza under intense international pressure could spell the beginning of the end of the chokehold that has hurt ordinary Gazans far more than their militant Hamas rulers.

The order to allow in all foods and some desperately needed construction materials brought calls for Israel to go much further and did little to quell the global outcry over the deadly flotilla raid that tried to bust the embargo.

Yet the announcement was an unmistakable sign of Israeli leaders' extreme discomfort with the damage the bloody May 31 flotilla raid has done to their country's international standing — and an indication the blockade's days may be numbered.

'Cosmetic'

- With a naval blockade still in place and Israel giving no indication it will lift a ban on Gaza exports, Palestinians dismissed the move as cosmetic.

Israel made its decision after consultations with U.S. and European officials, and a week after U.S. President Barack Obama — whose relations with Israel's hard-line government have been rocky — called the embargo unsustainable and urged that it be scaled back dramatically.

Mideast envoy Tony Blair, who helped work out the deal with Israel, called it a "good start."

In Gaza, the decision was met with skepticism and anger. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beer pong: No suds, no glory

There was a time when all you could get from playing beer pong was drunk. Now you can get rich, too.

What started out as a drinking game has blossomed into a nationwide American competition with a $25,000 US first prize, all for doing what millions of university kids do when they should be studying.

Tuesday night in Atlantic City, Michael Seviert and Byron Findley, of Sacramento, Calif., split the top prize as their team, Drinkin' Smokin' Straight West Coastin', bested all comers.

For those who never went to a fraternity party or stayed in a summer rental on the New Jersey Shore, beer pong is a game in which two teams assemble at opposite ends of a table that has 10 plastic cups filled with beer arranged in a triangle formation at either end.

Shooters try to toss ping-pong balls into the cups. If a ball goes in, the cup is taken off the table and a member of the opposing team has to drink the beer in it. The first team to get rid of all 10 of its opponents' cups wins. Of course, there's nothing other than a shortage of beer stopping players from starting a new game — over and over again.

Steve Soller, 23, left, and teammate Nate Mills, 22, both of Ohio, try to intimidate Pavel Braude, 22, as Braude tosses a ping pong ball at the World Beer Pong Tour competition in Atlantic City. N.J.

But organizers of the World Beer Pong Tour hope the national tournament and $50,000 worth of prize money will help put a respectable face on the activity. Exhibit A: The cups in the tournament are filled with water, not beer.

"No one is here to get drunk or act like fools," said Sam Pines, commissioner of the tour and a beer pong fanatic who picked up the game at Marist College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., in 2006.

"It's all about competition and skill."
Sam Pines

"It's a little rowdy, but it's like any other sporting event. It's all about competition and skill."

But not everyone got the message. Brian Bailey, a 25-year-old Maine resident, fancies himself the best beer-ponger on the planet. He and a pal call their team Shot-Callin' Ballers.

"I play all day with beer," said Bailey. "It's, like, we get hammered and make cups all day. I drink all day, and I make cups all day. That's what I do. That's my life." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Russia criticizes new U.S., EU sanctions against Iran

NUCLEAR Russia sharply criticized new U.S. and EU sanctions against Iran Thursday, saying they could derail co-operation between Moscow and the West regarding Iran's nuclear program.

The Russian Foreign Ministry said the sanctions — in addition to ones recently imposed by the UN — demonstrate the West's dismissal of Russia's opinion, and that the unilateral sanctions are eroding international efforts to halt Iran's nuclear developments.

The ministry said the new sanctions amounted to the U.S. and the EU "putting themselves above the United Nations Security Council." "We categorically reject that," the ministry said in a statement.

Russia supported a fourth round of UN sanctions imposed last week to curtail Iran's nuclear program over fears it is developing weapons.

The U.S. administration announced additional penalties against Iran Wednesday, hitting more than three dozen additional companies and individuals. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brushed off

- U.S. State Department spokesman Mark Toner brushed aside Moscow's criticism, saying the U.S., the EU and Russia all have the same goal and don't want to hurt the Iranian people.

U.S. uneasy about activist's detention

ZIMBABWE The United States is worried about the continued detention of a prominent rights activist arrested on claims he gave false information about Zimbabwe's diamond industry.

State Department spokesman Mark Toner said Thursday that Zimbabwe's delay on a bail decision for Farai Maguwu will prevent him from participating in meetings next week in Israel on so-called "blood diamonds."

Toner says Maguwu has rigorously investigated diamond field violations.

Maguwu denies charges he passed stolen documents on troop violations in eastern Zimbabwe diamond fields to the international diamond control body. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prescription medication catches up to illegal drugs

Hospitalization from usage equal for the first time in American history

For the first time, abuse of painkillers and other medication is sending as many people to emergency rooms at hospitals as the use of illegal drugs.

In 2008, emergency rooms saw an estimated one million visits from people abusing prescription or over-the-counter medicines — mostly painkillers and sedatives. That was about the same number of visits from those overdosing on heroin, cocaine and other illegal drugs, according to a government report released Thursday.

Only five years earlier, illegal drug visits outnumbered those from legal medications by a 2-to-1 margin.

In other words, the number of emergency room visits from medication abuse doubled, said Peter Delany of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

"It's a pretty startling jump. It's a problem," Delany said. He led a team that worked with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on the report.

Painkillers and sedatives clearly drove the trend. Emergency room visits for the painkillers oxycodone and hydrocodone more than doubled in 2008 from 2004. And cases from one kind of tranquilizer nearly doubled.

The estimates are based on emergency room data from more than 200 U.S. hospitals. Many of the cases may be overdoses, but some may come from mixing drugs or combining them with alcohol, Delany said.

The authors did not estimate how many of the emergency room patients died. A CDC report last year found that the rate of drug-related deaths roughly doubled in 2006 from the late 1990s, and most of the increase was attributed to prescription opiates such as the painkillers methadone, Oxycontin and Vicodin.

"The abuse of prescription drugs is our nation's fastest-growing drug problem," Gil Kerlikowske, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, said in a statement.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cause unknown

- Health officials are not sure why painkiller abuse rose so dramatically. But the number of prescriptions has been increasing, so some of those who ended up in emergency rooms may have gotten their medicine legally.

Toy soldiers violate school's weapons policy

U.S. A Rhode Island mother says her son's school cited its no-weapons policy in stopping the second-grader from wearing a patriotic hat he made to honour Army troops.

Christan Morales said her son David, 8, was assigned to make a crazy hat for his class at the Tiogue School in Coventry. She said they brainstormed and he came up with an idea to glue small plastic army figures to a camouflage hat with an American flag.

But she said David was not allowed to wear the hat for the project. Morales said his teacher called her to say it wasn't appropriate because it had guns, violating a school ban on weapons and toy weapons.

Anti al-Qaida fighter killed

IRAQ Gunmen stormed the home of an anti al-Qaida fighter west of Baghdad Thursday, killing him and four family members as they slept in the garden to escape the summer heat, officials said.

It was the second attack in as many days on Sunni figures who have turned against the terror network.

The pre-dawn attack on Khudr al-Issawi and his family took place before dawn in a village near Fallujah, 65 kilometres west of Baghdad. Issawi, his wife, two daughters and a son were killed, said local police chief Brig. Gen. Mahmoud al-Issawi. Another son was wounded.

The police chief, who blamed al-Qaida in Iraq for the attack, said the slain farmer was a member one of the local government-backed Sunni militias.

FCC considers changes to how the Net is regulated in the U.S.

BROADBAND U.S. federal regulators are reconsidering the rules that govern high-speed Internet connections — wading into a bitter policy dispute that could be tied up in court for years.

Over the objections of the agency's two Republican commissioners, the Federal Communications Commission voted Thursday to begin taking public comments on three different paths for regulating broadband. That includes a proposal by FCC Chairman Julius Genachowski, a Democrat, to define broadband access as a telecommunications service subject to "common carrier" obligations to treat all traffic equally.

Genachowski's proposal is a response to a federal appeals court ruling that cast doubt on the agency's authority over broadband under its existing regulatory framework.

The chairman's plan has the backing of many big Internet companies, which say it would ensure the FCC can prevent phone and cable companies from using their control over broadband connections to determine what subscribers can do online.

"There is a real urgency to this because right now there are no rules of the road to protect consumers from even the most egregious discriminatory behaviour by telephone and cable companies," said Markham Erickson, executive director of the Open Internet Coalition. The group's members include Google Inc., eBay Inc. and Amazon.com Inc.

Genachowski's plan faces resistance from the broadband providers themselves. They say it opens the door to onerous and outdated regulations that would discourage them from upgrading their networks.

Pink roses help Mandela mourn

Great-granddaughter's death marred World Cup opening

A sombre and frail Nelson Mandela emerged from seclusion to attend the funeral Thursday of his 13-year-old great-granddaughter.

Her death in a car crash marked a tragic start to the World Cup soccer tournament in South Africa.

Mandela emerged stiffly from a car and leaned on a cane.

The 91-year-old anti-apartheid icon was ferried in a golf cart to the brick chapel of the Johannesburg private school Zenani Mandela had attended and took a front pew.

Mandela's face was grave, though he broke into a smile at lighter moments during the service, including when a troupe of singers and dancers did a number for Zenani.

The service featured pop songs and hymns.

Mandela wore a corsage of pink roses on the lapel of his black coat.

Other mourners also brightened black clothes with touches of pink — ties, scarves, flowers.

An anguished message was read during the service from Zenani's mother, Zoleka Mandela Seakamela, daughter of Mandela's daughter Zindzi Mandela. Mandela Seakamela said she wished she'd indulged her daughter more, allowing her to sleep in late and wear makeup.

> "She will remain in my heart forever"
> Naomi Campbell

"I should have given you more hugs, more kisses," Mandela-Seakamela said.

Supermodel Naomi Campbell delivered a message by video, saying she considered Zenani her goddaughter. "She will remain in my heart forever," Campbell said.

Russia, U.S. agree on adoption pact

CHILDREN Russian and U.S. negotiators have agreed to set up licensed adoption agencies and allow monitors to visit the homes of adopted children as part of a new accord, Russia's children's rights ombudsman said Thursday.

Adoptions in Russia became a highly emotional issue in April when a Tennessee adoptive mother put her seven-year-old boy on a plane back to Russia — unaccompanied.

International outrage followed, and new adoptions by U.S. parents in Russia virtually stopped.

Some 1,800 Russian children were adopted in the United States last year.

Media rainbow is only one colour

UrbanCompass

A new study on the representation of visible minorities in the news media concluded it's pretty much business as usual at major newspapers and television stations in the Greater Toronto Area, which is to say almost everybody is white.

The research, by Ryerson University's Diversity Institute, found few visible minorities represented at the corporate level or among newsroom leaders.

And an analysis of news coverage suggests that very few visible minorities make it onto television news or into daily newspapers, although we live in a metropolitan area where nearly half the population is something other than white.

Visible minorities appeared in only 23 per cent of newspaper photographs. On the broadcast side, only one of the 11 television hosts, 25 of the 98 reporters and 146 of the 896 sources (16 per cent) featured in stories were visible minorities.

The report points out that this under-representation is problematic from a leadership point of view since media organizations play a role in defining society's leaders and in shaping the ambitions of individuals who want to be leaders.

For journalists, the implications are chastening: The lack of diversity in news coverage makes for stories that are bland, boring and bad.

Reporters often have little choice but to quote a white guy: Mayor David Miller is what he is. Lots of times, however, there are options. John Miller, professor emeritus at Ryerson's School of Journalism and the report's lead media researcher, points to a story about teenagers buying prom dresses by way of example.

The television piece quoted only white girls who all said the same, predictable things.

"If the reporter had made different choices and interviewed people from different cultures, it would have been a richer story," Miller suggests, noting that teenagers from different backgrounds might offer other perspectives on the prom dress rite of passage.

Another television story about March break captured images of people of all colours descending on Pearson airport, but only white folks en route to Cuba or Florida were interviewed. "It wasn't very interesting," Miller observes.

Reporters' biases may play a role in all this. But I think the warp speed demand of news reporters is also to blame. It takes time to meet different prom dress shoppers and to interview numerous travellers in pursuit of the best quote.

Then again, telling uninteresting stories is bad for business and a disservice to the community. We can and should do better.

Leaders may have to resort to candles

The environmental showpiece of the G8 summit has lost some of its lustre.

World leaders will bask in the glow of only five solar-powered street lights instead of the planned 15 when they arrive in cottage country later this month.

The solar lamps are the G8 summit's "signature environmental project." They were supposed to line the pathways of a resort near Huntsville during the leaders' one-night stay.

But the lighting company says the tough terrain makes for slow going, and there isn't enough time left to get all 15 lights installed before the summit starts.

"There may be only five of them now used in different spots because of rocks," said Ove Bakmand, president of Net Electric Ltd. "But they will be done in a couple of days. By the end of this week."

G8 Summit

Summit organizers had high hopes for the solar lights.

"Leaving an environmental legacy is an important component of the 2010 G8 summit's environmental strategy," says a contract document.

"A well-chosen signature project at the Deerhurst Resort will help to showcase innovative Canadian technology, while leaving a positive lasting impression of the summit."

The G8 solar lights cost $207,900. The same money could buy almost 14,000 solar-powered Noma garden lights at Canadian Tire. Those lights cost $15 each.

But Bakmand said "this is nothing similar to that."

The government awarded the contract to Net Electric May 25 — a month before the start of the summit. The rush order didn't leave the company much time to do the job.

"It was basically unreasonable," Bakmand said.

The solar lights will be moved from the resort into the town after the summit as a gift to Huntsville.

"As the Muskoka 2010 G8 summit is being held at a privately-owned resort, the signature environmental project will be installed at the Deerhurst Resort for use during the summit only and then gifted to the town of Huntsville for installation at a location within the town," the document says.

Toyota puts U.S. plant on road again

AUTOS Toyota will restart the delayed construction of its Mississippi plant, which will provide 2,000 jobs and be up and running by the fall of next year, it said Thursday.

The auto plant was initially planned to be completed by 2010, but building was suspended after the U.S. economy nosedived in late 2008. It will make 150,000 Corolla cars a year, moving back to North America production Toyota had temporarily shifted to Japan when it pulled out of a California joint venture with General Motors Co. in April.

HST clock ticks down

Business has nearly doubled in recent months at Valley View Memorial Gardens in Surrey, B.C., as thrifty planners scramble to lock in funeral prearrangements before taxes — life's other famed inevitability — take a new toll on their final plans.

Like many services in Ontario and B.C., cemetery, cremation and funeral arrangements have been exempt from provincial sales taxes. But when the harmonized sales tax takes effect in those provinces July 1, consumers will pay an extra seven per cent and eight per cent, respectively, for services from home renovations to haircuts.

Basics, such as groceries, most health and education services, prescription drugs and childcare, will not be subject to the HST. Also, in B.C. gasoline will be exempt, while Ontario consumers won't be dinged for meals less than $4.

While both provinces say consumers will see no change to taxes on about 80 per cent of purchases, some small frills — vitamins, camp sites and taxis — are going to cost more.

Too late, or not?

- The deadline for prepayment on services and items delivered after July 1 passed at the beginning of May.

AIR CANADA Delays by Boeing in delivering its new 787 aircraft have limited Air Canada's ability to expand its global flight map, the airline said Thursday. Air Canada said it has been busy adding new destinations in the United States, Europe and Asia. However, it could have done more to add routes to India and elsewhere in Asia if it had the smaller, long-range Boeing 787. Mumbai in India and Changzhou in China, for example, don't generate enough traffic for the airline to be profitably serviced using the giant Boeing 777, while the smaller 767 doesn't have sufficient range. Air Canada has 37 Boeing 787s on order. They were originally supposed to be delivered in 2008, but manufacturing delays have pushed that back to 2013

Magna goes public with buyout report

An independent evaluation of Magna International Inc.'s plan to buy out founder Frank Stronach's controlling stake in the company raised the spectre of "significant negative reaction from shareholders" even before the proposal was made public.

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Magna International proposal would see its chairman Frank Stronach, above, give up his special voting shares in exchange for $863 million US in cash and common shares.

The CIBC World Markets report — which was prepared for a special committee at Magna — suggested the proposal could raise the ire of shareholders because of the 1,800 per cent premium it will pay Stronach to give up his family's voting control.

Under the Magna proposal, Stronach and his family trust would receive $300 million in cash and nine million common shares worth around $625 million, given their value on the TSX Thursday, to give up their multiple voting shares.

Magna released the CIBC report Thursday in the hope of deflecting an attempt by an Ontario regulator to quash the proposal. The OSC has called a hearing for next Wednesday during which enforcement staff will ask a commission panel to strike down the proposed transaction. Magna has called a shareholder vote on the plan for June 28.

The evaluation by CIBC World Markets also pointed out a number of potential benefits to the proposal, including a broader shareholder base; increased liquidity; and a higher share price. Magna's shares trade at a discount compared to its peers.

If the proposal is approved, it will see Stronach give up his voting control in exchange for nine million class A shares — giving him a stake of about 7.5 per cent — and control of a new joint venture that would develop electric vehicles and their components. THE CANADIAN PRESS

66 Each of the Stronach family's 750,000 class B Magna shares has 300 votes, giving the Stronachs a 66 per cent voting interest.

Miner fires 397 workers in Mexico

MINING A Halifax-based gold company has fired nearly 400 workers and shut down a mine in Mexico in a labour dispute that reflects growing tensions affecting Canadian miners that operate in Latin America and abroad.

Gammon Gold Inc. said Thursday it has "terminated" 397 union workers at its El Cubo mine in Guanajuato state and is filing criminal charges against seven union executives.

Gammon said it experienced illegal labour disruptions at the mine and financial demands from the union that the company described as "untenable." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gammon Gold has offices in Toronto

Habs trade playoff hero

Canadiens send goaltender Halak to Blues for prospects

The Montreal Canadiens have made their goaltending choice — Carey Price stays and playoff hero Jaroslav Halak is off to the St. Louis Blues.

The Canadiens dealt Halak for two young forward prospects Thursday, even though the 25-year-old usurped Price as their starting goaltender late in the NHL season and played brilliantly in leading them to a berth in the Eastern Conference final.

In return, Montreal got centre Lars Eller, who may be ready to play next season, and rugged winger Ian Schultz from the junior Calgary Hitmen, who will likely need seasoning in the minors.

Canadiens general manager Pierre Gauthier called it a "big picture decision," in which the team's scouts and managers opted for the long-term potential of the 22-year-old Price, the fifth overall draft pick of 2005, over the more immediate success from the 25-year-old Halak.

Halak was the Canadiens' player of the year in 2009-10, when he went 26-13-5 and was fifth among NHL goalies in save percentage at .940 and ninth in goals-against average at 2.40. Price was 13-20-5 with a 2.77 average and a .912 save percentage.

Both goaltenders are due to become restricted free agents July 1, with Halak holding the right to salary arbitration, but Gauthier didn't try to work out a deal once the team decided to make a trade.

He could have kept both, but Halak indicated in a conference call that would have left both unhappy.

"I think they did the best thing they could do — keep one goalie and give the other one a chance to play most of the season," Halak said from Slovakia. "It's best for everyone that I was dealt and can start on a new beginning."

St. Louis made the trade after informing veteran goalie Chris Mason they would not attempt to sign him to a new contract.

Halak earned $800,000 US last season and is due for a big raise.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

JUSTIN K. ALLER/GETTY IMAGES

Jaroslav Halak became a hero for the Montreal Canadiens during the playoffs, where he set a team record with 53 regulation-time stops in a 4-1 victory over Washington as the Canadiens came back from a 3-1 deficit to beat the first-place Capitals in the opening round.

Trade has Habs fans signing the Blues

- The trade was widely panned by Habs fans on Twitter and other websites within minutes of its completion. Most felt Carey Price should have been dealt and, if not, the team should have received more for the goalie who was the main reason Montreal upset Washington and Pittsburgh in the playoffs. A "shame," a "nightmare," and "April Fool's in June" were among the comments posted on one website. In the House of Commons in Ottawa, Liberal MP Justin Trudeau said, "What? Halak for two hockey sticks and a bag of magic beans?"

Last stand for Boston's Big Three?

Two NBA finals meetings in three years used to mean the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers were just getting warmed up.

Larry Bird and Magic Johnson did this three times from 1984-87. Boston won all three when the teams squared off in 1962, '63 and '65; and repeated the feat three times in four years at the end of that decade.

So when the longtime rivals met in Game 7 Thursday night, it was easy to consider it the end of a chapter, but not the end of the story.

Yet there was also the feeling the Celtics were making the last stand with their Big Three of Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett and Ray Allen, which was already an older group when it was put together in the summer of 2007, even before Garnett needed knee surgery that robbed him of some explosiveness.

"I hope not," coach Doc Rivers said. "Obviously, I'm not sure. I do think, and I've said this before, that I think we're going to be better in some ways next year because Kevin will be healthier, if you know what I'm saying. It's always a year removed from surgery that you have your best year. You know, we obviously have to sign Ray. Rasheed (Wallace) has to come back and all that stuff. So there's a lot of variables."

Mike Weir hits his tee shot on the 18th hole yesterday during the first round of the 110th U.S. Open at Pebble Beach Golf Links in Pebble Beach, Calif. The native of Bright's Grove, Ont., shot a 1-under 70.

Weir gets off to strong start

Mike Weir popped the ball out of the tangled rough, then watched it hit the green and fall in the hole for a birdie on No. 16 and sole possession of the U.S. Open lead.

Too bad momentum at Pebble Beach yesterday morning lasted about as long as the trip to the next tee box.

The 2003 Masters champion from Bright's Grove, Ont., followed his great shot with a bogey-bogey finish to wind up at 1-under 70. He was tied for the clubhouse lead with K.J. Choi, Ian Poulter and Rafael Cabrera-Bello after a good opening round that seemed as if it could have been better.

"You don't want to finish a round like that. It's never a good thing," Weir said. "But it wasn't because I was looking at the scoreboard and looking at where I am in the tournament. Because it's Thursday, and I just happened to hit a couple of poor shots."

He wasn't alone. The sun was shining and the wind was blowing on one of America's great courses for the opening round, leading to the spectre of a brittle course and dry, unreceptive greens for Tiger Woods, Lee Westwood, Tom Watson and the rest with afternoon tee times.

"There are areas on a few greens which are very soft and there are areas where I couldn't get a tee peg in to repair a pitch mark," Poulter said.

Woods, who won by a record 15 strokes at Pebble Beach in 2000, got a nice round of applause on the first tee box, then opened play by nearly running his approach shot on No. 1 into the hole. It slithered 12 feet past, though, and he two-putted for one of three straight pars to open his round.

Calgary's Stephen Ames shot a 3-over 74., while Kent Eger of Regina carded a 5-over 76.

Phil Mickelson played in the morning and the greens were only part of his troubles. He hit one ball onto the beach on No. 17, another off the rocks and careening into the ocean on 18. He left a ball in a bunker on No. 4 and missed a four-foot birdie putt on No. 6. All part of a frustrating day that left this year's Masters winner at 4-over 75.

Home improvements abound across the CFL

CFL Extra Points

That home renovation tax credit sparked plenty of construction projects last winter, including CFL home improvements.

The Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes were busy in the off-season, expanding Molson Stadium at McGill University by 5,000 seats, boosting capacity to 25,012. Fans will get their first look at the enlarged facility Saturday afternoon when the Alouettes play host to the Toronto Argonauts in an exhibition game.

In Calgary, the Stampeders locker-room has undergone an extensive renovation, upgrading the 50-year-old facility into a state-of-the-art complex that includes a spacious dressing room, fitness centre, medical room and equipment area.

In Vancouver, a temporary Empire Field has been created with 27,500 seats. It will host its first CFL game Sunday when the Lions take on the Edmonton Eskimos.

The stadium will be used until the Lions can return to B.C. Place Stadium, which is being fitted with a $458-million retractable roof.

At Edmonton's Commonwealth Stadium, the FieldTurf Duraspine Pro playing surface went in at a cost of $2.6 million and replaces the CFL's last remaining natural grass surface.

Hope everyone kept the receipts!

QB'S GO WIRELESS

The CFL has introduced new wireless headsets in quarterbacks' helmets, an innovation that is bound the help the Toronto Argos as much as any CFL team.

The Double Blue have four QBs in camp but none has any meaningful CFL game experience.

The 20-second play clock in Canada means sending in plays from the bench quickly and efficiently is key to the success of any offence.

Eliminating the need for hand signals will make the process that much easier.

Cleo Lemon, the Argos' apparent starter this season, will need to be a quick learner but a built-in head set will make the process that much easier.

Dan Toth has been covering the CFL for more than a decade and is a lifelong fan of Canadian football.

Briere, son escape injury in collision

ACCIDENT Philadelphia Flyers star centre Danny Briere and his nine-year-old son escaped serious injury in a collision early Thursday with a tractor-trailer near the New York-Pennsylvania state line, authorities said.

A police official said Briere was "a little drowsy" and trying to pass the truck when his SUV drifted to the right in the passing lane and clipped the tractor-trailer. Briere's vehicle then hit a guardrail as the tractor-trailer jackknifed and flipped onto its side.

Too many NFL exhibition games?

Commissioner Roger Goodell says the NFL no longer needs four pre-season games, but the league should change its off-season training programs. The league is considering a proposal that would switch from four exhibition and 16 regular-season games to two and 18. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Father watches sons live out CFL dream

ARGOS Like most fathers, Glenn Crawford wants his children to be more successful than him.

That's no simple task as the old man is a retired high school principal, married for 34 years to Elaine, a school guidance counsellor he met as a teenager, and parent of three happy, healthy, star athletes.

But as he sat watching his two sons — Bryan, a CFL veteran, and Brad, a rookie trying to grab a spot on the roster — fly around the field at Toronto Argonauts training camp Thursday, 59-year-old Glenn couldn't help but think that by even making it this far they were already well on the way.

"To get paid to play a game that you love, that's pretty special," said Glenn Crawford.

The elder Crawford went to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers training camp about 40 years ago. It turned out to be nothing more than "a cup of coffee," he said, joking his CFL career was cut short by three things — "two knee operations and a lack of talent. But mainly it was the lack of talent."

A former linebacker at McMaster University in his hometown of Hamilton, Glenn Crawford didn't make the pros but he did instil in his sons a passion for a part of the game that's key for any Canadian CFLer.

" To get paid to play a game that you love, that's pretty special."
Glenn Crawford

"I always thought special teams was the best part of the game," the elder Crawford said as his sons practised that on the field in Mississauga. "You get to run down the field and unload on somebody."

Given the five-year age difference, this is the first time the brothers have played on the same team in any sport.

Bryan, 28, in his sixth CFL season and now getting a chance to carry and catch the ball as a running back, has made his mark on special teams and "is one of the best in the league," said head coach Jim Barker. Brad, a 23-year-old linebacker, is "a bigger-bodied guy who has the same kind of mentality" in understanding the importance of that part of the game and working hard to perfect it, the coach said.

"It's obvious there's been some things passed down by their special teams dad," Barker said Thursday as the Argos held their last set of two-a-day workouts ahead of Saturday's pre-season finale in Montreal.

For their part, both Crawford boys recall their dad not only coaching them and their kid sister, Lauren, a 20-year-old soccer player at Southeastern Louisiana University, in a variety of sports growing up — football, hockey, soccer and basketball — but also their parents rarely missing a game, even at college.

Putting in extra work pays off for Gonzalez

Forty minutes before Wednesday's batting practice started Blue Jays shortstop Alex Gonzalez was already in a batting cage at San Diego's Petco Park, taking his cuts.

The crack of the bat echoed through the enclosed cage time after time, followed finally by batting practice pitcher Jesus Figueroa asking in Spanish if Gonzalez wanted to keep the soft-toss drill going a little longer.

J. MERIC/GETTY IMAGES

Toronto Blue Jays infielder Alex Gonzalez celebrates his home run against the Tampa Bay Rays earlier this month.

Gonzalez kept swinging, continuing the extra work he says is the key to his resurgent season.

While the Blue Jays' offensive production has declined sharply in June the 33-year-old Gonzalez, already known for his defence, has quietly become one of the team's most consistent batters.

Gonzalez enters Friday's series opener against San Francisco with a five-game hit streak and has hit safely in 10 of the club's last 12 games. Since May 29, he has nudged his average steadily upward to .273 from .259, and his 13 home runs put him on pace to eclipse the career-high 23 he hit in 2004.

"I try to be aggressive, and that's what I do."
Alex Gonzalez

"I try to be aggressive, and that's what I do," Gonzalez said. "I work every day with (hitting coach Dwayne Murphy), and I try to be ready and aggressive."

Combined with this steady defence, Gonzalez' improved offence might make him a contender for the all-star game July 13.

An all-star in his first full major league season, Gonzalez hasn't retuned to the game since his lone appearance in 1999. He has pondered significance of a second all-star selection, but with the game still nearly a month away Gonzalez doesn't spend much time worrying about it.

"If I make the game it will be exciting for me and my family," said Gonzalez, who ranked ninth in the American League in home runs as of Thursday. "But right now you just keep playing hard and trying to help the team win games."

Like Marco Scutaro last season, Gonzalez is a Venezuelan shortstop whose strong first half has exceeded preseason expectations. But like Scutaro last season, he will need players or manager Joe Girardi to make him an all-star.

As of Thursday afternoon, Yankee Derek Jeter led American League shortstops with 2,108,259 votes while Gonzalez languished in fifth place, more than 1.6 million votes behind.

Gonzalez also faces competition from within his team.

Right fielder Jose Bautista is in a 2-for-36 slump, but ranked second in the majors with 18 home runs as of Thursday.

First female inductees into Hockey Hall of Fame expected

ANNOUNCEMENT The women's hockey community is anxiously awaiting the Hockey Hall of Fame's announcement on its next class of inductees.

The Hall will say Tuesday whether women's faces will be hung alongside those of Gordie Howe, Bobby Orr and Jacques Plante.

For that to happen, the 18-member, all-male selection committee had to nominate women and vote them in.

The Hall made it easier for the induction of women when it established a players' subcategory for them. Up to two women can be inducted annually starting this year, in addition to a maximum of four men.

Front-runners from the modern era of women's hockey include American forward Cammi Granato and Canadians Angela James and Geraldine Heaney.

They've been standout players since women's hockey hit the international stage in 1990.

If the Hall opts to go the route of women's hockey pioneers, it could be someone like Shirley Cameron or Abby Hoffman.

Cameron founded the Edmonton Chimos and played at the highest level of women's hockey available to her, while Hoffman pretended she was a boy to play hockey in the 1950s.

"There are a lot of women who have been involved with hockey for a long time, longer than most people really know," Heaney says.

That means the selection committee has a broad timeline from which to single out the first female inductees.

The women's hockey community views the prospect with a combination of excitement and nervousness.

The first female inductees set the standard for those who enter the Hall after them.

Football fans blow vuvuzelas prior to the Group A match between France and Mexico Thursday at the Peter Mokaba Stadium in Polokwane, South Africa.

A week full of drama, emotion at World Cup

Only one week into its run, the World Cup in South Africa has already delivered more drama than a full season of the most popular soap opera.

And here's the difference — this is reality TV.

The omnipresent vuvuzelas provide the soundtrack for every match and they never fail to grab the viewer's attention.

Ears immediately perk up.

The play-by-play announcers are forced to create urgency in their narration to be heard above the din. Never has so much emotion been spent on a plastic dollar-store horn.

The gigantic gaffe by English goalkeeper Robert Green is akin to the impending fall of the British Empire ... or so we are led to believe.

How can Green possibly go back in that net? And what if he did and he let in another softie? It would surely be the end of his international career.

He would be vilified by the motherland of football. That's serious stuff.

Then there's Diego Maradona, the legendary coach of Argentina who dances and twirls on the sidelines as the new star Lionel Messi prowls the pitch for the Albi Celestes.

It is fascinating to watch as the cameras constantly veer from Messi's brilliant football to the demonstrative and melodramatic Maradona, who becomes the centre of attention as we seemingly wait for his next and perhaps most celebrated meltdown yet.

The South African players come off the bus singing and dancing. It is a joyous solidarity rarely seen in professional sport. And then there are the Italians, who become red-faced and allow tears to flow in the rousing rendition of their national anthem.

There is hugging and crying and the Spanish press refers to a defeat at the hands of Switzerland as a "national tragedy."

It's only the first round and there is a long way to go, but already emotions are exceedingly raw.

You have to love it because most of the time we're used to sporting dramas being played out in courtrooms or at union bargaining tables when gigantic contracts are considered.

As the World Cup turns we're looking at something bigger than that. This time all the drama takes place on the field of play.

And that's as it should be.

Dalembert traded to Sacramento

NBA Samuel Dalembert got his wish.

The Philadelphia 76ers traded him to the Sacramento Kings Thursday for Andres Nocioni and Spencer Hawes.

Dalembert, of Montreal, asked for a trade last year because he was unhappy with his role.

Dalembert was Philadelphia's longest-tenured player, but he played for seven different coaches and never developed into a dominant force after being drafted in the first round in 2001.

England manager Fabio Capello looks on during his team's training session on Thursday in Cape Town.

England coach feeling the heat

QUESTIONS After a lengthy honeymoon with England, Fabio Capello is starting to feel the kind of pressure he was used to when coaching Real Madrid and AC Milan.

Capello goes into Friday's World Cup match against Algeria (CBC, 2:15 p.m. ET) with his decision-making under serious scrutiny for the first time since taking charge 30 months ago.

The pressure is now on Capello on his 64th birthday to mastermind a win in England's Group C match against Algeria. Pressure is nothing new to the Italian, who was fired by Madrid in 2007 despite delivering the Spanish club its 30th league title.

"We always think England is big pressure but managing AC Milan and Real Madrid is also big pressure on a daily basis," England defender Jamie Carragher said. "He has dealt with that and been successful. There was always going to come a point where he was going to be under pressure. That is part of being a manager."

Capello has been revered for ruling with an iron fist, but questions are now being asked over why he is so strict with his players.

He kept them in the dark over the starting lineup until two hours before kickoff against the U.S. team, a move that has been blamed for contributing to Robert Green's horrendous goalkeeping blunder against the Americans.

And he will do so again for the Algeria game. He said he already made up his mind who will be the goalkeeper on Friday, but won't tell the players until just before the game.

French toast?

Elimination looms after loss to Mexico

GROUP A RESULTS

Mexico 2 France 0

Substitutes Javier Hernandez and Cuauhtemoc Blanco scored a goal in Mexico's 2-0 win over France at the World Cup on Thursday, leaving the French on the verge of elimination from Group A.

Hernandez ran onto Rafael Marquez's pass and rounded goalkeeper Hugo Lloris before guiding the ball home in the 64th minute. Hernandez's grandfather, Tomas Balcazar, scored for Mexico against France in the 1954 World Cup, although that was a consolation goal.

Blanco converted a penalty in the 79th after Eric Abidal fouled Pablo Barrera, who came on for the injured Carlos Vela in the first half.

"We have to enjoy this win," Marquez said. "We have to go step-by-step and be calm."

Mexico is now level on points with Uruguay, both with four. France and South Africa both have one point but still have a chance to advance.

France has to beat South Africa and hope Mexico and Uruguay don't draw their match in Tuesday's final group games.

"We're not going to go out of this tournament without winning a match," France winger Florent Malouda said. "It's shameful to lose like that. It's a question of saving our honour."

France winger Mathieu Valbuena said the players were inconsolable after the defeat.

"There were no words spoken, there's nothing you can say after a defeat like that," Valbuena said. "Of course it hurts a lot. But we have to forget this defeat and think about the South Africa match."

For France coach Raymond Domenech, it seems like a case of the 2008 European Championship all over again, with a scoreless draw followed by a defeat, and his controversial six years as coach could end in more embarrassment.

"We feel a great disappointment and sadness," Domenech said. "We struggled. At the moment I really don't have an explanation for it." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hat trick sparks Argentina

With Messi tied up most of the game, Higuain scores 3 on South Korea

GROUP B RESULTS

Argentina 4 South Korea 1

Gonzalo Higuain scored a hat trick in Argentina's 4-1 win over South Korea at the World Cup Thursday, a result that put the South Americans on the brink of qualifying for the next round from Group B.

Higuain scored his first goal in the 33rd minute with a far post header after Nicolas Burdisso flicked on a cross from Maxi Rodriguez. He added two second-half goals — in the 76th and 80th minutes — to put the result beyond doubt.

Argentina had gone ahead 1-0 in the 17th when Park Chu-young deflected a free kick from Lionel Messi into his own net.

Argentina's Gonzalo Higuain, right, scores a goal Thursday during the Group B match against South Korea in Johannesburg, South Africa.

After Higuain's first goal, Lee Chung-yong pulled one back for South Korea by pouncing on a defensive mistake in first-half injury time.

With Messi playing in a slightly deeper role, Argentina lacked a cutting edge in the opening stages, its main threat coming down the left wing where Carlos Tevez was drifting into space and linking well with Gabriel Heinze and Angel Di Maria.

Higuain, who missed a string of chances against Nigeria, shot high over the bar in the eighth minute and Messi only showed occasional flashes of brilliance as he was marked closely and often found himself closed down by two or three opponents.

With Buffon out, it's Marchetti's time to shine

ITALY It's easy to believe Italy's new starting goalkeeper when he says he has luck on his side.

Federico Marchetti had already lost his two best friends to auto accidents when he and two teammates at fourth division side Pro Vercelli emerged uninjured from an auto accident themselves five years ago.

"When you stare death in the face, it leaves something inside you," Marchetti said Thursday. "It's tough to describe. It was a terrible experience but one that I'll never forget."

The accident inspired Marchetti to live each day as it comes and take advantage of his chances.

Since the accident, Marchetti has climbed his way to the top division and become a member of Italy's national team.

Now, with first-choice goalkeeper Gianlugi Buffon out due to a herniated disk, the 27-year-old Marchetti has the biggest chance of his life in Sunday's World Cup match against New Zealand.

"I'm sure my friends are watching me from up above and that they'll be pleased for me," said Marchetti, who wears the names of his deceased friends in a tattoo on one arm, with a Hail Mary on the other. "I'm convinced someone is watching out for me." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Opa! Success for Greece

GROUP B RESULTS

Greece 2 Nigeria 1

Now that Greece has scored a goal and won a match, this World Cup is a success.

The Greeks claimed their first World Cup win by rallying to beat 10-man Nigeria 2-1 in Group B Thursday.

Vassilis Torosidis poked home a loose ball in the 71st minute after a mistake from Nigeria goalkeeper Vincent Enyeama to make history for Greece, which had lost all four previous World Cup matches, including three in 1994.

"We badly wanted this, because we'd never even scored a goal in the World Cup before," Dimitris Salpingidis said. "I can't say whether we'll make it out of the group. But I can say that we'll leave with our heads held high."

"We badly wanted this, because we'd never even scored a goal in the World Cup before."
Dimitris Salpingidis

To advance to the second round, the Greeks almost certainly must get at least a draw with powerful Argentina Tuesday; the Argentines routed South Korea 4-1 Thursday and the Koreans took Greece 2-0 earlier in the tournament. A difficult assignment for sure.

So they are revelling in this victory.

"Of course it would have been a shame to go home without a point, so we're very pleased to have scored points here," Greece coach Otto Rehhagel said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports in brief

CRITICISM Former coach Luis Aragones has criticized Spain's tactics after a 1-0 World Cup defeat to Switzerland, adding that a lack of conviction from the start didn't help. Aragones called the Group H loss "a tough blow" for one of the tournament favourites.

BECKHAM David Beckham shared a philosophical moment at the World Cup with retired Cape Town Archbishop Desmond Tutu. According to a statement issued by the Desmond Tutu Peace Center, the two chatted over tea Thursday at Tutu's office. Beckham is quoted as telling Tutu he was disappointed not to be playing in this year's World Cup. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadian actor reprises werewolf role in Eclipse

LINA TOYODA
for Metro Canada

Landing your first acting role in a major motion picture, let alone a box office hit, is a rare occurrence that takes perhaps just the right alignment of skill, timing and a few lucky stars.

But that's exactly how things panned out for 20-year-old Canadian actor Tyson Houseman, who caught a break and was cast as Quil Ateara in the teen vampire phenomenon known as The Twilight Saga.

Houseman says he kind of just fell into acting.

"To be completely honest, I was terrified of the idea of acting but whenever I was actually doing it, I was enjoying myself so much. I could get so comfortable being on stage," says Houseman. "It was just the anticipation building up to it that completely scared the heck out of me. I think one day I realized I really enjoyed that adrenaline that I got from that fear."

The Edmonton native plays one of the boys of the wolf pack and first appears in New Moon, the second of four parts in the series. He will reprise his role in the third — and highly anticipated — Eclipse, set for worldwide release at the end of the month.

He says his character has a much bigger role in Eclipse and "imprints" on a female in the film, a wolf pack ritual and rite of passage, something along the lines of "love at first sight" and claiming a future mate.

While Houseman enjoyed playing parts in school plays growing up, he never thought it would lead him on the high-profile path he has now found himself on.

Opportunity knocked soon after he made the move to Vancouver to pursue an acting career after graduating high school.

"About four months into living in Vancouver I found this open casting call on Craigslist and they were looking for people who had a Native American background who were between the ages of 15 and 25 and I was like, 'Yeah I fit that description so why not go check it out.'"

Only actors of native descent were cast for members of the wolf pack and Houseman says he feels lucky to have fallen into a character that was similar enough to himself that he could easily relate to.

He did, however, endure some intense training and workout sessions with the rest of the pack to fit the buff and shirtless form in the movies.

"It was really intense stuff," Houseman says.

Total Eclipse of Canadians

• Cameron Bright: In the bloodsucker pecking order, there are vampires and then there are the Volturi. The 17-year-old Victoria native gets to play Alec, one of the ashen sophisticates who make the rules in the vampire world.

• Jodelle Micah Ferland: Best known for her role in the 2005 horror flick Silent Hill, the 14-year-old Vancouver native bites into the character of Bree Tanner — a vampire created specifically to kill the family of hero Edward Cullen.

Reed planning life after Twilight saga

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Actress, writer and L.A. native Nikki Reed is trying to figure out what to do with her life.

And while she's been enjoying the success of the Twilight franchise — in which she co-stars as vampire Rosalie — she's also been trying to make the most of the global phenomenon.

"It's sometimes difficult to harness all those things and point it in the right direction so that you can get what you want out of this amazing, insane amount of exposure that none of us were really prepared for," she tells Metro.

Of her future, Reed is sure of two things. The first is that she wants to do more than act.

"I know that I'm not going to be sitting at the Four Seasons in 10 years talking about the last however many films I've made and I've only acted in them," she says. And since she got her start as a screenwriter as well as an actress, no one's expecting her to stay in front of the camera.

Quite the opposite, actually. "There's the expectation of, 'Well, you're not just an actress, so what else? What are you going to deliver?'" she explains.

To that end, she's launching a website to collect her other creative pursuits, including photography and directing — Reed recently financed and directed a music video in London for the artist Sage, which she's releasing next month.

"It's just like a place for me to show other aspects of my interests and personality that maybe people wouldn't know," she says of the website. "Everyone has Twitter and things and they want everyone to know where they're going all the time and what they're doing, and I do understand there's an element of self-promotion, and it's wonderful and that. That's just not really my character."

Toy Story 3 raises game

Toy Story 3
Director: Lee Unkrich
Stars: Tom Hanks, Tim Allen, Ned Beatty
Classification: G
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

A number after a film's title is usually cause for worry, as sequels aren't always the most artistically inspired creations. The best sequels, in fact, tend to eschew the numbers altogether (like The Dark Knight, The Empire Strikes Back and Aliens, for example).

Buzz Lightyear and Woody get a new lease on life in Toy Story 3.

But with the Toy Story franchise, that cause for concern is far from warranted.

Once again, the folks at Pixar have returned to the characters of their first movie, now 15 years past, and come up with an inspired, intelligent and entertaining film expertly straddling the line between kids and adults entertainment.

The latest — and apparently final — instalment finds Woody (Tom Hanks), Buzz Lightyear (Tim Allen) and the rest of the familiar toys of the first two films fretting over their owner Andy's impending departure to college.

After becoming convinced they're headed for the trash heap, the toys mount an escape that lands them in the apparent Shangri-La of a local day-care centre, where the toy world is overseen by a deceivingly cuddly old teddy bear (Ned Beatty). While kids will certainly enjoy the movie, don't be surprised to find most of the adult audience needing tissues.

The only real criticism of the movie is that, like almost everything else being released by a major studio this year, it's available in 3-D.

Don't bother. The visuals are spectacular enough without it, and the technology doesn't add enough to warrant the higher ticket price.

Holy Rollers usual drug morality tale

Holy Rollers
Director: Kevin Asch
Stars: Jesse Eisenberg, Justin Bartha
Classification: 14A
Rating: ⊕⊕½

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

REVIEW Holy Rollers hopes that a talented cast — led by Jesse Eisenberg and Justin Bartha — and a rarely examined community — Hasidic Jews — can distract from what is basically a by-the-numbers drug world morality tale.

They don't. Eisenberg continues to quietly build one of the most impressive resumes of actors his age, while Bartha ditches his accustomed comic charm to show that he can pull off menacing and unhinged just as well.

Despite the actors' best efforts, though, this is territory audiences have seen before, and Holy Rollers offers nothing new to the genre.

Inspired by true events to some degree, the film follows Sam (Eisenberg), a restless young man who's not too thrilled about his family's plan for him to become a rabbi.

Set adrift after an arranged marriage plan fizzles out, Sam gets seduced by his neighbour, Yosef (Bartha), into a network using innocent-looking Hasidim to transport ecstasy between Europe and the U.S.

Perhaps the film's greatest flaw is it's treatment of the insular community.

What could've been a sharp examination of the modern world pressing in on a people trying to hold onto their traditions is wasted by director Kevin Asch's hands-off approach, with the camera peering in like a National Geographic expedition to Brooklyn.

Jennifer Lawrence's breakout performance lifts Winter's Bone.

Bleak Bone cuts deep

Winter's Bone

Director: Debra Granik
Stars: Jennifer Lawrence
Classification: 14A
Rating:

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Playing the rural backwoods of America as alien setting isn't particularly difficult, but creating that environment without condescending or mocking its inhabitants is a rare feat.

That's exactly what director Debra Granik has accomplished with Winter's Bone, a gritty redneck noir where the setting is a vital character.

Audiences are thrust into a world of moonshine, rusty trucks, and basement methamphetamine operations that feels completely genuine, populated by characters who might not necessarily be likable, but are at least believable.

The film centres on the rather extraordinary performance of 18-year-old actress Jennifer Lawrence.

She plays a young woman whose life is in disarray before the crime/mystery plot kicks in.

Despite still being school age herself, she is raising her brother and sister with no help from her invalid mother or low level criminal father who is perpetually on the run from the police.

When her father disappears and is presumed dead she is forced to track down those responsible to prove his death and keep the family home — a journey that leads her down a dark road into the underbelly of a depressed community. The film is almost unrelentingly bleak with little chance of a happy ending filled with hugs and kisses.

Debra Granik does a fantastic job of blending her suspense-driven plot with an almost anthropological study of the impoverished Ozarks mountain community (all of the locations were presented as found and one of the child actors actually lives in the home in which the film was shot).

It's a disturbing portrait of a distinct culture that admirably never delves into easy caricature.

Granik is aided by a spectacular cast including the aforementioned Lawrence in a breakout performance and the underrated John Hawks (Deadwood) in a role that could have easily gone to a traditional heavy threatening actor, but plays far more effectively with his scrawny physique and tortured eyes.

Winter's Bone is a difficult film to watch at times, but a rewarding one that offers a window in a world rarely seen on the big screen.

Stick to the comic book

Jonah Hex

Director: Jimmy Hayward
Stars: Josh Brolin, Megan Fox, John Malkovich
Classification: 14A
Rating: ●

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

The best part of Jonah Hex — where the movie really becomes fun — is during a brief sequence at the beginning when a bulk of backstory for Hex (Josh Brolin) is told using animation similar to the comic book on which the movie is based.

That's a really long way of saying go read the comic, and skip this loud, clumsy super-western.

Josh Brolin plays the title character in Jonah Hex.

The story follows Hex, who developed mystical powers after some Native Americans saved him from the grave, enlisted by President Ulysses S. Grant (Aidan Quinn) to stop Quentin Turnbull (John Malkovich), a former Confederate officer who's hilariously presented as the country's first terrorist.

As lots of dialogue and unnecessary narration reminds us, the mission's personal for Hex, since Turnbull killed his wife and son.

Lots of time and effort was put into getting the massive scars covering half of Hex's face right, which must be why so much of Brolin's screen time is spent in close-ups shot to highlight it.

Perhaps they should've spent a bit more time and effort on making sure he could speak clearly through all the prosthetic work. At one point, Hex dispatches a bad guy and delivers what we have to assume is a witty one-liner. The problem is it's unintelligible.

The real tragedy is the amount of acting talent involved, including Brolin, Malkovich and Michael Fassbender (a breakout in Inglorious Basterds).

Megan Fox can't really be faulted, as she's barely in the movie and has very little to do but scowl and heave her chest when she is there.

The cast is definitely having fun with the material, but that fun doesn't extend to the audience, unfortunately.

An ode to human will

Journey from Zanskar

Director: Frederick Marx
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Isolated by harsh terrain, unforgiving climate, and political unrest, Zanskar is a community that receives little care from the Indian government.

Things have reached such a dire state that almost the entire population is illiterate and as a result the area might lose its longstanding adherence to Tibetan language.

This is the backdrop for Journey From Zanskar, and it can be difficult to watch how impoverished and dismissed the people have become.

The documentary follows a pair of Buddhist priests who come to the community to take the most promising children away for free education.

Shot with a skeleton crew by director Frederick Marx, the film closely follows its subjects on a long and treacherous journey. Though the families are happy to give their kids up for a future with some hope, it's still painful to see them separated as the children are as young as four and won't return home for at least 10 years.

Fearing attacks from religious extremists on the main roads, the monks, children, and a few horses embark on a journey on foot across the mountains to their school. It's a nearly impossible trip that Marx captures with unflinching honesty that can be difficult to watch, but is richly rewarding.

Narrated by Richard Gere, the movie is open to criticism for being propagandistic, but Marx keeps things from ever becoming too didactic. It's very clear that the filmmakers are sympathetic to the priests' cause, but the movie is primarily a testament to the power of human will.

Lighter side of sex

Year of the Carnivore

Director: Sook-Yin Lee
Stars: Cristin Miloti
Classification: STC
Rating:

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

Year of the Carnivore aims for the absurd in sexual interplay.

Year of the Carnivore is a film about a woman having lots and lots of weird, uninhibited sex.

Except it's also one of those movies where the carnal-questing participants get it on while wearing their underpants.

In other words, it's a picture caught in erotic limbo — raunchy and outrageous in theory, but not in practice.

It's a good thing then that Canadian multimedia personality Sook-Yin Lee's directorial debut (which she also wrote) has heart and charm to spare, even if it cops out on the copulation.

Carnivore charts the sticky misadventures of sweet faced geek-girl Sammy (winningly played by Cristin Miloti) who, after flubbing an impromptu encounter with the rock and rolling love of her life, vows to mount any and all who cross her horny path. But her mission is one of erotic enlightenment, not hormonal sating voracity.

Lee — a former pop star, MuchMusic VJ and radio DJ — hit her apex of notoriety with John Cameron Mitchell's 2005 comedy Shortbus, in which she had real, unsimulated sex graphically on camera.

Year of the Carnivore has much in common with that film's tone: it's light, breezy, plays much of its intercourse for absurd laughs and has a core of human truth.

It's also filled wall to wall with jangly Canadian indie pop music that carries the silliness along and make it all rather painless and pleasant.

But a movie featuring hot threesomes, lesbian sex, straight sex and orgasmic mothers who lactate in ecstasy should push its visual envelope a little bit farther that Lee does.

There goes first choice

InFocus

Richard Crouse
metronews.ca/infocus

The first glimpse of Josh Brolin as scarred comic book bounty hunter Jonah Hex reveals it is a role he was born to play. His natural bad boy swagger shines through the character's heavy make up but Brolin wasn't the first choice to play the character, or even the second. As is so often the case in Hollywood many other actors were first considered for the part.

California surf boy Matthew McConaughey was approached, as was indie film darling Emile Hirsch.

Thomas Jane even went as far as submitting photos in full Jonah Hex drag, scars and all.

In the end, Brolin brought that extra something special that made the role his, and joined a long list of actors who weren't the first choice to headline big movies.

Many actors have played James Bond but a recent JamesBondwiki.com poll anoints Sean Connery as the two-to-one people's favourite.

Guess what? He wasn't the first choice.

Author Ian Fleming partially modelled the Bond character on Cary Grant, so the suave actor was top-of-the-list when the first Bond film, Dr. No, was cast. Grant, however, sent his regrets, saying he was too old to play the spy.

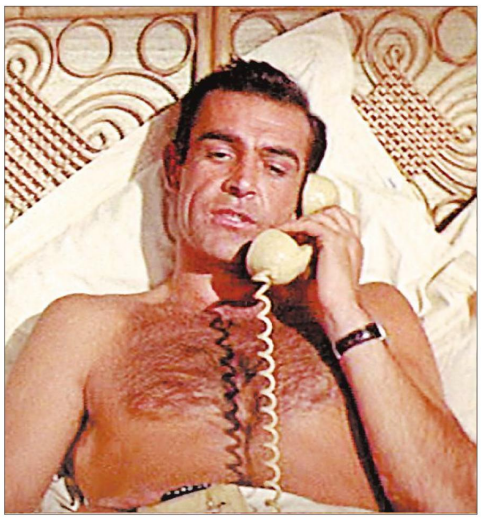
When Connery was cast, the writer was less than pleased.

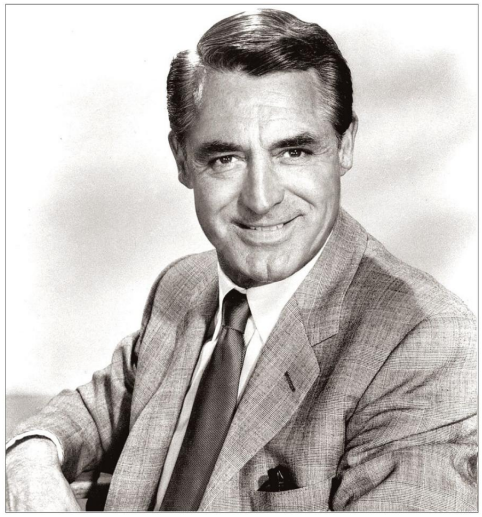
"He's not exactly what I had in mind," said Fleming, who felt Connery was too "unrefined" for the role. He later changed his mind and Connery went on to play Bond in six movies.

Connery was the first choice to play Gandalf in The Lord of the Rings series but said no.

"I didn't understand the script when they sent it to me," he said. "Bobbits? Hobbits?"

New Line apparently wanted him so badly they offered him a huge chunk of the of worldwide box office receipts. That "no" cost him almost $400 million.





Cary Grant, right, and not Sean Connery, was author Ian Fleming's first choice to play James Bond on film.

"Author Ian Fleming partially modelled the Bond character on Cary Grant, so the suave actor was top-of-the-list when the first Bond film, Dr. No, was cast. Grant, however, sent his regrets, saying he was too old to play the spy."

Many other movies have "settled" for second choices. Pretty Woman director Garry Marshall courted Molly Ringwald and Daryl Hannah, who said no because she felt it denigrated women, before casting Julia Roberts.

Can you imagine The Matrix without Keanu Reeves? Apparently the Wachowski Brothers could as they offered the role of Neo to Will Smith first. Smith declined, opting to make the box office disaster Wild Wild West instead, but says he has no regrets.

"I would have absolutely messed up The Matrix. At that point I wasn't smart enough as an actor to let the movie be — whereas Keanu was."

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Mike Stasko makes his directorial debut with Iodine.

Grassroots Iodine mesmerizing

Iodine
Director: Mike Stasko
Stars: Mike Stasko, Ray Wise
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

REVIEW George Lucas has led at least two generations to believe that a science fiction film must involve whiz bang effects, robots and campy melodrama. It doesn't of course. Real science fiction has little to do with bloat and everything to do with states of mind, with the natural world and its relationship with elements both definite and unknown.

Writer/director and actor Mike Stasko knows this too and his cerebral debut film Iodine (opening for a limited engagement at the new Toronto Underground Cinema) is proof of this. Stasko stars as John Clem, a haunted but likeable young man who travels deep into the wilds of Northern Ontario (Parry Sound, in fact) to find out what happened to his missing father.

Retracing his dad's steps, John instead finds his father's partner, a shadowy figure (played by Twin Peaks heavy Ray Wise) who opens John's eyes to another level of reality. Or is the lad just off his meds?

Iodine is a real grassroots picture with gorgeous wilderness photography (by Eric Schiller, who also composes the haunting, moody score with Stasko) that more than makes up for its lack of production values. Blazingly intelligent dialogue and an almost meditative tone are laced with a sinister aura of unease.

It's really a mesmerizing little picture that is slightly damaged by its leading man: as a writer and director Stasko has a bright future, definitely someone to keep a close eye on.

As an actor, uh…well, he's one heck of a writer/director, anyway.

• Director and actor Mike Stasko will host a post-show Q&A after the 7 p.m. screenings at the theatre today and June 23rd.

Hill turns up the drama

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Jonah Hill wants to make one thing absolutely clear.

"I really don't want to sound pretentious. That's like my main goal," he says. "I was like, 'If I ever do a dramatic movie and people don't hate it, I'm not going to become one of those people who just starts talking about acting all pretentiously.'"

Hill now finds himself in that difficult position, receiving high praise for his performance in Cyrus as the title character, an emotionally stunted adult son threatened when his mother (Marissa Tomei) falls for a new man (John C. Reilly).

Cyrus opens next Friday

"It's definitely more of a dramatic stretch for me," he says. "It was the first time ever it was difficult for me to go home at the end of the day and shake off what I was doing earlier in the day and just hang with my friends or my girlfriend and be normal after playing such a severely affected guy."

Known for comic turns in Superbad, Knocked Up and Get Him to the Greek, Hill always hoped he'd get a chance to do something different.

"I've always wanted to do something like this but never knew if I'd get that opportunity. Which is fine, because I love all the movies that I'm known for greatly," he explains.

But moving into more dramatic territory — and going up against co-stars like Tomei and Reilly — was definitely daunting.

"I was obviously very intimidated going into it," Hill admits. But he wasn't going to let that stop him.

"It's like anything I've done in my career. I could've either been intimidated and not gone for it and be at home watching this movie on TV or just really take chances and go for something really different and use that intimidation to fuel your performance in a way," he says.

The A-Team

REVIEW As catchphrases go, "I love it when a plan comes together" is a particular 1980s standout. But fans of the TV series The A-Team might find the new big-screen adaptation a little frustrating. While Hannibal (Liam Neeson, stepping into George Peppard's humidor) talks incessantly about plans and the importance of having them and executing them, he never actually utters the famous line. And it's not like he doesn't have the opportunity, as this action movie has an overabundance of talk. It's too much plan, and not enough coming together.

The Karate Kid

REVIEW To anyone alive in the 1980s, the Karate Kid legend is a familiar one. In this reboot, Jaden Smith (son of Will and Jada) stars in the role Ralph Macchio made a Reagan era icon. The story's been freshened by a move to Beijing but the filmmakers wisely kept the underdog coming-of-age tale front and centre. Smith is the film's centerpiece. He's clearly still a novice, but has inherited the best bits of his mother and father's collective gene pools (he got his mother's ears! Yay!) and has charisma to burn. He's not going to win an Academy Award for this one, but he capably carries a great deal of the movie on his 12-year-old back.

He's ably assisted by co-star Jackie Chan, who brings warmth and personality to Mr. Han.

The essential NXNE gig guide

BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Canada

Iggy and the Stooges, left, perform a free show at Yonge-Dundas Square Saturday, while Cold Cave, above, hit the Lee's Palace stage.

From folk to folk-pop, through lo-fi to power pop ... and just plain powerful, we've got a gig for you to see this weekend at Toronto's North by Northeast festival.

Check out our guide to the top acts you need to see before this citywide musical love-in winds down.

Friday

Old Man Luedecke

Dakota Tavern, 9 p.m.: If you don't already know this addictive folk revivalist, his name is Chris Luedecke ... and he's bringing banjo back. Listening to this Chester, N.S.-based singer-songwriter is like being let in on the joke. The Juno winner writes catchy folk and bluegrass numbers that are comic as they are heartfelt, amplified by Luedecke's deadpan stage banter.

Best Coast

The Garrison, 11 p.m.: Best Coast frontwoman Bethany Constentino delivers lo-fi tunes soaked in West Coast sun. The Los Angeles, Calif., artist draws an otherwise blurry ambient sound into focus with fine melodic pop throwbacks, music made for summer's haze that's as easy to disappear in, as its content is relatable.

Huron

Horseshoe Tavern, 1 a.m.: Though an infant in rock music years, Hamilton, Ont.'s Huron is off to a prodigious start. Recently signed to the Cowboy Junkie's Latent Recordings, the band garnered faithful backers, plus critic love for its self-titled debut released earlier this year. Sporting strong rock riffs with country flourishes, Huron's got growth potential and is one to watch as the band develops its live legs.

Saturday

Iggy and the Stooges

Yonge-Dundas Square, 9:30 p.m.: The cornerstone NXNE set of 2010 will no doubt be that by nouveau Rock and Roll Hall of Fame inductees, Iggy and the Stooges. The Iggy Pop-fronted punk rock pioneers from Michigan behind tunes like Search and Destroy and Gimme Danger are sure to deliver a raucous, memorable public showing in the heart of the city.

The Hoof & the Heel

Drake Underground, 10 p.m.: Judging by the sweet debut EP "And All the Tigers" from this fresh anglophone trio from Montreal, The Hoof & the Heel is well on its way to making a firm stomp in Canada's indie music scene. The band's energetic pop is both sunny and tender, in the tragicom vein of She & Him-meets-Belle and Sebastian, with sparing synth flourishes and distinguishing joint male-female vocals.

Hannah Georgas

Horseshoe Tavern, 10 p.m.: Her 2008 EP The Beat Stuff put her on the map, but Hannah Georgas' recently released full-length debut This is Good is quickly making this (Ontario expat) Vancouverite singer-songwriter a landmark. Georgas bounces from folk-pop to the dance floor with a shake of her rusted locks, accompanied by her humble on-stage wit.

For more details visit nxne.com

Avi Buffalo

Lee's Palace, 12 a.m.: As cliché as it's beginning to sound, the Sub Pop-signed youngsters from Long Beach, Calif., that comprise Avi Buffalo really do reflect the naïveté and nostalgia of youth quite pointedly, in their breezy, sentimental '60s-steeped rock. But Avi Buffalo shows maturity and promise in its thoughtful songwriting, playful harmonies and well-fused nods to their alternative predecessors.

Surfer Blood

Wrongbar, 12 a.m.: The truth is in this West Palm Beach, Fla., band's name. Mixing guitar-driven surf pop with powerful pop song developments, Surfer Blood fashions a sound full of dominant optimism. With uncertain intensity, the band draws blood out of beauty, balancing its tendency toward exuberance with earnest passion.

Cold Cave

Lee's Palace, 1 a.m.: Synths and warped vocals are the separate-but-equal stalactites and stalagmites of Manhattan, N.Y.-based outfit Cold Cave. The electro-pop project with Wesley Eisold (whose vocal timbre sounds like a romantic, modern day Ian Curtis) at its head sways between tunes that place all sonic elements on the same plane, and more pop-friendly "darkwave" diversions.

Interesting releases for the summer of 2010

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

Now that the first day of summer is almost here (7:28 a.m. on Monday!), it's time to look at some releases that could prove interesting.

Gord Downie

The Grand Bounce (Out now): Easily the best thing he's done outside of the Tragically Hip. Unabashedly Canadian and summery, this is a CD that should be played around a lot of campfires this summer.

Foals

Total Life Forever (Out Now): Wondering about the song in the promo for season seven of Entourage? It's Spanish Sahara from their second album.

Sleigh Bells

Treats (Out Now): An interesting combination of noise and pop that sold more than 21,000 albums through iTunes in just three weeks.

Stone Temple Pilots

S/T (Out Now): Loaded with hooks and that STP guitar crunch, this record was a real pleasant surprise. Maybe this second act is for real.

Two Door Cinema Club

Tourist History (Out now): Imagine a smoother sounding Franz Ferdinand and from Northern Ireland instead of Scotland. When I first heard the single I Can Talk, it stayed in my head for days.

Stars

The Five Ghosts (Tuesday): One of the prettiest records I've heard so far this year comes from this Montreal band and Broken Social Scene associates. Their pre-release cross-Canada club tour in May sold out immediately — which tells you something about the anticipation for this CD.

Delphic

Acolyte (June 29): I've been raving about the smooth, dance-y indietronica from these Manchester guys for almost a year now. Songs like Doubt and Counterpoint deserve to be heard by as many people as possible.

Arcade Fire

The Suburbs (Aug. 3): Easily one of the most anticipated albums of the year, indie or major. Did I mention they're playing Madison Square Garden this summer?

Disturbed

Asylum (August): The fifth album from this Chicago band has already been preceded by a single called Another Way to Die. Singer David Draiman: "No songs about puppy dogs or rainbows here."

Filter

The Trouble with Angels (August): If the lead single The Inevitable Relapse is any indication Richard Patrick may have regained the mojo that he lost sometime in the late 90s.

Brandon Flowers

Flamingo (September): The Killers front dude — an incurable workaholic, apparently — has a solo album coming this fall while the rest of the band takes a break. Listen for a lead single called Crossfire.

Behind the scenes at the MMVAs

KEITH CARMEN
for Metro Canada

The MuchMusic Video Awards are ready to take over a strip of Queen Street West this weekend. But have you ever wondered what it takes to bring viewers one evening of spectacular musical revelry? How about a year's worth of blood, sweat, tears, revised schedules, meetings, permits and more headaches than a migraine convention.

Such are the lives of Sheila Sullivan and Neil Staite, MMVA organizers for the past decade. While we're gawking at co-host Miley Cyrus and watching performances by Ke$ha, Drake and Justin Bieber, this duo is breathing sighs of relief at seeing the past 12 months come to fruition.

In fact, before the lights cooled down after last year's MMVAs, Sullivan and Staite were already organizing this successor, attaining artists, sourcing local equipment suppliers, budgeting staff, re-routing streetcars and garnering the inevitable permits/policing an event of such magnitude necessitates.

"Planning starts the day after the MMVAs," notes Sullivan in the midst of a dazzling dance of riggers, materials and props that overtake the parking lot at 299 Queen St. W. "We immediately hold a post-mortem on last year's show, seeing what worked, what didn't and how we can make things even better next year."

Torontonians begin to see the fruits of such labour four weeks before the event looms as the asphalt becomes abuzz with activity. This year's theme: each stage resembles various culinary gadgetry.

"That overhang one's the 'George Foreman,'" Sullivan smiles, pointing to the largest of three stages. "The enclosed one is 'The Microwave,' the one at floor level here is 'The Griddle' and if you look overhead, that platform jutting out is 'The Spatula.'"

Turning attention to two more aspects, Staite notes that the popular red carpet ceremony has been relocated to MuchMusic's side entrance in order to allow for yet another stage to overtake the infamous intersection at Queen and John streets.

Moreover, in order to ensure those at home aren't left out, VJ Liz Trinnear will host the online-exclusive backstage Digital Lounge, she quips will "have a bit of everything. I'll be talking to bands on-camera, blogging, tweeting, texting and on my phone."

Of course, the means more technical strategizing. At that, gazing across the dozens of bodies, tonnes of rigging, cables, lights and massive machinery, one is mystified at how the MMVAs come together with perceived ease.

"It's a big chess game requiring lots of meetings to make sure that we do everything in the correct order," Staite sighs. "We have pages and pages of plans … that are still changing up to the second the show starts. But once it does, it's worth it."

MMVAs by the numbers

- Crunching numbers is vital to Sheila Sullivan and Neil Staite's role in bringing the MMVAs to life. At any moment, they are capable of rhyming off mind-numbing statistics about any facet. A few thrown out at random:
- Presenters: 28
- Attendees: 7,800+ (1,200 parking lot, 600 artist reception, over 6,000 on the street)
- Tallest rigging height: Approximately five storeys/50 feet
- Stages: 5
- Artists: 9
- Feet of red carpet: 6,500
- Hours for installation: 7,500
- Hours for dismantle:1,400
- Cost: "A lot … plus a bunch of zeroes."

'Creative differences' is apparently what they're calling 'bad press' these days

Looks like Eddie Cibrian will not be returning to CSI: Miami this fall, TVGuide.com is reporting a CBS source as saying. The website quotes the source as saying the move is part of creative differences with the actor. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Betty White returns to familiar sitcom territory in the new TV Land series, Hot in Cleveland.

White Hot in Cleveland

It's a sitcom about four single women of a certain age, portrayed by an ensemble that includes Betty White.

Hot in Cleveland, which debuts this week on TV Land, is not officially The Golden Girls redux. But the similarities don't end with the set up. Just as White shared top billing with three golden character actresses, she now works with another trio of established comedy veterans: Valerie Bertinelli (One Day at a Time); Jane Leeves (Frasier); and Wendie Malick (Just Shoot Me!).

Q When this script came across your desks and they said it would be on TV Land, did you think, "Huh?"

A Bertinelli: Goodness. When I first heard about it, Betty was already set.

Q When I first heard about this, I thought, "the new millennium's Golden Girls."

A Malick: Silver. The Silver Girls.

Q What do you think of that, Betty? Do you think this is the next generation's Golden Girls?

A White: I think it's chemistry no matter what the age. I think age is the bottom rung. I don't think age matters. ... I'm 88 and a half, and I'm still working my tail off.

Q How is the chemistry different here than it was on The Golden Girls?

A White: It doesn't differ that much. It is a team effort. These girls all work together. There is never anything like, "How many lines do you have?"

Boyle to oversee 2012 Olympics opening ceremony

Danny Boyle, the Oscar-winning director of Slumdog Millionaire, will oversee the opening ceremony of the 2012 London Olympics.

Boyle was introduced Thursday as the artistic director of the ceremony to be held on July 27, 2012. The announcement was made in the shadow of the new 80,000-seat Olympic stadium in east London that will host both the opening and closing of the games.

Boyle won the best-director Academy Award in 2009 for Slumdog Millionaire, a film that won a total of eight Oscars. His other films include Trainspotting, 28 Days Later and Sunshine.

"It's a fantastic responsibility," Boyle said. "When they offered us the job, they said, 'Do you want to think about it?' I said, 'No, I want to do it.'"

Another Hollywood director, Stephen Daldry, will be one of the executive producers of the opening and closing ceremonies. Daldry directed Billy Elliott, The Reader and The Hours.

The other executive producers of the ceremonies are Beijing Games designer Mark Fisher, television director Hamish Hamilton and Catherine Ugwu, who helped produce the 2006 Asia Games in Doha, Qatar.

London will have a hard act in trying to top the extravagant opening ceremony of the 2008 Beijing Olympics, which was designed by Chinese movie director Zhang Yimou and drew a worldwide television audience of one billion people.

"It's not going to be like Beijing in terms of this overwhelming scale," said Boyle, who was speaking at 3 Mill Studios, the production centre for the London 2012 ceremonies team. "It'll be more modest than that, but our job is to make sure that within those means it's spectacular as well and that it delivers a thrilling welcome to the opening of the games."

> "When they offered us the job, they said, 'Do you want to think about it?' I said, 'No, I want to do it.'"
> Danny Boyle

Although the Manchester-born Boyle did not reveal any of the content of the opening ceremony, he said the project will be inspired by a love of sport and the pride he feels for London, where he has spent much of his adult life.

Musical take on Star Wars

IAN GORMLEY
for Metro Canada

Anthony Daniels has worn many hats over his 36-year career — appearing on stage, in radio, television and film. But, none has managed to eclipse the gold C-3PO mask he first donned back in 1976, when the British actor accepted the part of an etiquette-obsessed protocol droid in Star Wars.

Despite reprising the role five more times on film — and in countless spin-offs and tie-ins — Daniels says that it wasn't until his current stint working on Star Wars: In Concert, that he "truly gets" fans' obsession with the Star Wars universe.

"All these years, I've been slightly distanced from it," he says. "Star Wars in Concert has absolutely put the story in perspective to me."

As its name suggests, Star Wars in Concert is a heavily edited version of the six films projected on large screens and accompanied by an orchestra with Daniels narrating.

"It's a combination of stage, television and film acting to me," he says. "I'm storytelling, I'm narrating and I'm acting."

The show, which took three and a half years to put together, had input from Star Wars creator George Lucas and conductor John Williams who re-wrote some of the music he penned for the films specifically for the show. It's quite a production centred around a role Daniels never wanted.

Star Wars in Concert appears in Hamilton July 24

"I refused the job interview," he recalls.

Despite his ongoing loyalty to the Star Wars brand, Daniels is careful not to let it take over his life.

"These conventions, I prefer not to be in a church hall every Sunday writing my name out like a naughty school boy." When not playing a golden-limbed robot, Daniels works as a visiting scholar at Carnegie Mellon University's Entertainment Technology Centre in Pittsburgh, Penn.

"I'm not going to go on forever," he cautions. "I keep going back because I've realized that it's a path that chose me."

- As well as working on all six films, actor Anthony Daniels has reprised his role as C-3PO in a variety of spin-offs.
- The infamously' terrible Star Wars Holiday Special, which even Daniels describes as "really, really bad."
- Disneyland attraction Star Tours.
- 1980s cartoon Droids, centred around C-3PO and R2-D2.

Greek island Santorini packing in crowds as Athen's woes continue

MICHAEL VIRTANEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ammoudi Bay is seen from the village of Oia at the northern tip of the island of Santorini, Greece.

The afternoon crowd flowed down among the shops, cafes and picture-postcard lookouts on the Greek island of Santorini, speaking at least a half-dozen languages.

It spread along the clifftop village of Oia's cobblestone walkways, as a cliffside pathway wound beyond to a cove, where you could lie in the sunshine amid the black volcanic rocks and swim in the sapphire sea.

This island of black rock owes its unique, dramatic landscape to volcanic eruptions. A volcano, still active, stands at the centre of a ring of islands, Santorini the longest. In between them is a vast, deep caldera, filled with water, surrounded by the islands' cliffs, volcanic rock, and black and red sand beaches. Geologists say an early blast created a tsunami that washed over Crete 100 kilometres away, wiped out Minoan civilization and reshaped this landscape.

Santorini is about a 45-minute flight from Athens. While tourism is down in Greece this year partly due to a financial crisis that has led to protests and strikes, the disruptions have had little impact on areas outside Athens.

Santorini's capital, Fira, with narrow cobblestoned alleys lined with storefronts selling clothing and jewelry, perches high at the heart of crescent-shaped Santorini. The island is about 50 kilometres long and the sea was startlingly blue up close. We rode to Oia on a public bus packed with day-tripping cruise passengers. But down at the seaside it was much quieter, and the sea was so clear you could see the small fish. Diving underwater it was the same, entirely blue and translucent, with dark blue minnows darting by.

Unexpected pleasures included the friendliness of the locals, and the fact that nearly everyone spoke English. At the hotel, we were upgraded to a room with a balcony. As we watched the hourlong sunsets from our balcony or lingering at rooftop cafes. After the last direct rays disappeared behind the volcano, the spray of clouds high overhead turned dramatic shades of red, purple and blue.

Then the lights came up and shone from the windows of the neat white buildings, creating a glittering cascade along the cliffs in either direction under a midnight-blue sky.

A desperate ploy?

FOR THE LOVE OF ALL THAT IS HOLY: STOP FEEDING THE BEAST! Reality stars Heidi Montag and Spencer Pratt are faking it when it comes to their breakup, sources insist to Page Six. Their latest ploy reportedly involves a story about Montag having an affair with Cougar Zank, a former Marine turned bodyguard and friend of Pratt. "Heidi and Spencer are trying to play out a fake reality show in the press and get paid along the way," a source says. Report: Jackson doc never received proper medical gear

WHAT'S THAT OLD SAYING ABOUT A CARPENTER BLAMING HIS TOOLS? Michael Jackson's doctor requested but never received lifesaving gear from the concert promoter organizing the singer's London shows, documents obtained by The Associated Press show.

Emails and a proposed contract detailing Dr. Conrad Murray's negotiations with concert promoter AEG Live reveal the requests for a heart resuscitation unit and a medical assistant.

Neither apparently was in place when Jackson died last June 25 after Murray administered a mixture of sedatives, including the anesthetic propofol, in an attempt to get the chronic insomniac to sleep.

Propofol is extremely powerful and is usually administered only in medical settings with emergency equipment on hand. Patients are normally constantly monitored.

Murray was alone when he gave the drugs to Jackson. After he realized the sedated star was not breathing, he performed CPR but was unable to revive him.

AND THEN SHE WEPT BITTERLY AS TOM'S MANIACAL LAUGHTER RANG FROM THE NEXT ROOM It seems Chris Klein was more than just a little intoxicated when he was arrested for driving under the influence earlier this week. The actor's blood alcohol tested at .20 during a Breathalyzer test, sources tell TMZ. The legal limit in California is .08. The arrest marks Klein's second DUI in six years. The American Pie star also reportedly had a dog with him in the car, which was later retrieved by a friend, according to the website.
